 Enjoying the first pep
 assembly, senior Abel
 Piercy takes his turn at Twister, while freshman Stacey
 Stone tries to stay on.

Science is cool! Proud of his science skills,
 senior Todd
 McManus has fun
 finishing up a tricky experiment in chemistry class.

Smile! Accepting a playful kiss from a friend, freshman
 Amilah Pitchford,
 freshman Andy Foyre appears slightly shocked.

Study or not to study? Finishing up some calculus homework, seniors Tim
 Frull and Jacob
 Fina work in the commons.

Hi, stop clowning
 around! Seniors
 Hyrum Neilson, Sara
 Weston, Jim Parrott,
 Elizabeth Kloxin, and
 during carnival.

A Year in Retrospect:

In an everchanging world, We are the ones who will fuel that change, who will push the envelope, who will fight to be the best at all we do. We are the history makers, the dream akers, the bubble breakers.
 We are a contradiction in terms,
 a pull in two directions, an invincible force.
 Like a living oxymoron, able to be two different things at once and remain strong in both pursuits, we will live a long, fulfilling life.
 Our legacy shall be forever remembered, as we are a generation living in turmoil and peace,
 a frantic people organized in a world
 of chaos, living in harmony.

On the ball: going with the flow of the current, seniors Dan Brown, Jeff Nuttall, Troy Narvaez, juniors Tennille Walker, Becca Neilson, sophomore David Rockwood, junior Lindsay Hofstedt, senior Ruel Deleon, sophomore Lowell Oposcolo, senior Leon Gwin, and freshman Michael Pavlik feel the power of electricity from the glowing lightbulb.

Lunch time fun! Escaping from the food court at Taylor University in Indiana, senior Annie Fisher goes to get some real food in town with her gal pals.

Summer Camps- are places of social, mental, and physical enrichment. People work together, make friends, and generally, have fun. It's a place where one can lose oneself and find oneself. In other words, it is a place to get away from your normal life temporarily and be yourself. The friends you make, experiences you have, and the knowledge you gain at camp will be with you long after you leave. When it ends you will leave feeling better for having taken the time to enjoy it.

Dancing in the streets at missionary camp in Mexico, seniors Katie Poet and Melanie Crevier take time to sneak away and perform a water dance just to cool off.

Senior Ari Dickinson and junior Caitlin O'Brien stand happily together after a big discussion in the Washington debate camp.

As an exchange student in Japan, senior Erik Christensen got to experience many interesting adventures, one of them being able to try on a samurai warrior suit.

The Rural Alaska Honors Institute (RAHI) is a program that assists students in Rural Alaska in making the academic and social transition between high school and college. RAHI is for students who are willing to work hard and who are dedicated to excellence. I went to RAHI this summer; it was one of the best summers of my life. I took five classes and earned nine college credits: Computers, English, Study Skills, Introduction to Business, and Swimming. It really prepared me for what to expect in college. The work was challenging and deadlines were very important. However, some things were quite unexpected. One day in my business class, the professor got a little too comfortable and dozed off. It was funny, after the video ended, everything got quiet, everything except for the professor's snoring. RAHI was an incredible experience for me. It was all bumpin' and stuff.

M. Leary

Parties are the way my friends and I get away from the stress of school and life in general. Saturday nights are the best time to party; or have any fun. We usually go cosmic bowling 'til around twelve a.m. This really gets the night going. While bowling we also dance and talk with our friends. After bowling, we always end up at someone's house to continue hanging out, depending on whose parents aren't home. There we kick back let off some steam while listening to music, talking about all the interesting and important things that are going on in our lives, eat some mega-munchies, and of course drink, that is of course, soda pop. Some of my favorite people to party with are: Claire, Willow, Vicky and some others who will stay anonymous.

party (par 'te)n. 1. A social gathering for pleasure, amusement, or the like. Allright. So the definition is dull. But we know better, right? Whether it's a family affair, disco night, or a night out on the town, Kayhi students know how to live it up. For those who don't think that there's life outside of Cosmic Bowling, have we got news for you. No matter what kind of party: birthday party, all-girls slumber party, or an after-dance co-ed get-together, Kayhi students really know how to be the life of the PARTY!

Rock on! Sophomore Joey Fama, junior Jon Erickson, and senior Abel Piercy get down at a party. Later, Joey Fama, senior Jake Fama and junior Gavin Piercy play pool.

Steppin' on the outside!
Riding the bus is an uplifting experience early in the morning, as senior Cara Wallace proves. It's a chance to catch up on sleep!

Being in high school is a great experience. Starting as freshmen, the big yellow bus is the only means of transportation. Sophomores find more creative ways, like skateboarding or hitching a ride from their parents. Juniors are usually old enough to drive, but if they've procrastinated, they may just be getting their permit! Seniors are expert drivers with practice. The parking lot has become a battle zone for space...first come, first serve! No matter how we get to school, in style or in the big yellow pickle, we better be there!

Hitchin' a ride! Ready to end a long day at school, Kayhi students jump in their friends' cars and head off for an enjoyable afternoon, resting up for the next day.

J. Haseltine

Some people shouldn't be allowed to drive. At first, I thought it was cool that my friend Annie got her license, but since then we've come close to death, one too many times. Sometimes I tried to ignore her bad driving. I didn't let it bother me when she took her hands off the wheel, and I just laughed when she would nearly run into something. Also, I thought that maybe her car was partly to blame for her driving. Its leaky seats and weird sounds made us all laugh, so I could see how driving it might be distracting for her.

One day, we were driving downtown when Annie slammed on the brakes for no apparent reason. I was thrown forward in my seat. I turned to ask why we had stopped. She said, "I couldn't remember which was the break and which was the gas, so I just hit one and hoped for the best!" She claims she was kidding, but I still wonder.

bodaciously blissful bedrooms

J. Williams

My room is my life, my love, my work of art. Broken alarm clocks hang from the ceiling, a red boa, my bed in my closet, a house of postcards taped to the yellow wall. Oh yeah! There are yellow, turquoise and black paint on the walls. A multi-colored carpet that was once grey is on the floor. Because I do a radio show, there are CDs and tapes everywhere. I have supplies for collages, and not only are the walls covered, but the ceiling also. I have a blue-and-white-checked loveseat that pulls out into a hide-a-bed, and I always keep an extra mattress beside my bed just in case one of my friends decide to crash. I have a black wall dedicated to my life in California. It has clothing store boxes, pictures, and more postcards. My closet is filled in obnoxious clothing, and though I'm a complete slob, my closet is color-coordinated. Shoes, paper, coffee cups, incense, books and more shoes. My artwork, my life, my room.

Ahhh! This is the life. Seniors Brittany Hewitt, Awndrea Manning, and Erik Auger hang out in Brittany's room and discuss her interior decorating skills.

Bedrooms can be sanctuaries. They're a place where one can get away from his hectic life and relax. If you're an immaculate neat-freak, that is. Bedrooms also reflect the personality of the people who live in them. Think about this: Do messy people live in spotless rooms? (No, it doesn't count if mom cleans up.) Each bedroom has a distinctive atmosphere, containing everything from teddy bears galore to a shrine to Davy Jones (of the Monkees) is safe in the privacy of your room. Unless, of course, it's shared with a sibling!

American Graffiti: Sophomore Chelsey Richardson could use some help when making her bed. Maybe one of her artistic friends could lend a hand.

The 90's is a decade that will not be remembered for its own subcultures, but for its tendency to mimic those of the past. Suddenly, it's hip to dress like your parents used to. Bell bottoms and platforms are all the rage. Movies like Austin Powers are cleaning up at the box office and who isn't excited about the Culture Club reunion tour? Not ones to fall behind on trends, Kayhi students are turning back the clock all around campus.

These boots were made for walking...flashing back in time, sophomore Claire Rowan and seniors Katie Poet, Awndrea Manning, and Brittany Hewitt stand tall.

...cause baby, look at you now! Fondly looking through the senior portraits and baby ads, sophomore Chelsey Richardson compares the seniors of then with those of now.

I refer to the 1990's as the "Eclectic 90's" because it's a mix of everything, especially the old. People are starting to like old stuff, their clothing, movies, TV shows, music and cars have all been revamped in the 90's. Clothing is one of the major comebacks. Bell-bottoms/ flares, tie-dye, and patched pants are the new fads of the 90's returned from the 70's and 80's. Movies and T.V. such as "Grease", "Brady Bunch", "The Avengers" and "Mission Impossible" are back. Even "Titanic" has a theme from way back, one that is obviously once again loved. Music has been "modernized", or as the record companies say, sampled. Cars are the ultimate. The allure of the sleek new bug is tempting. Though expensive now, by the time some lucky freshmen are able to drive without parents, they may have a brand-new bug of their own. So, what are we thinking???

Seriously Silly Seniors

The senior carnival was really fun this year. Trista Linder, Nicole Beraldi, Brittney Shull, and I signed up for the little tot cupcake walk. The preparation and setting up for the carnival took about 4 hours. We painted many signs and decorated our booth in a colorful fashion. When the carnival started I was very excited to see the children entering the gym. It was neat to be able to give out cupcakes to the little kids. From 6:00 to 10:00 p.m. our booth was full with little children walking in circles waiting to win the grand prize, a cupcake. I will never forget the fun time I had participating in the senior carnival. It took a lot of work yet proved to be a blast.

Jumping for joy, senior Jim Parrott shows a huge smile as he displays his balloons to the crowd. His excitement shows how proud he is to be a senior at Kayhi.

Senior Carnival- This is an event every senior participates in to raise money for the class and provide little kids with a night of fun and games. It takes a long time to set up, but once the party gets going it's a wild and crazy ride. Sometimes you don't know where you are going or what you're doing. There is everything from the cotton candy to the spook house, and almost everything in between. It's good old home town fun for the whole family. No one should miss out on the seniors' silly, silly and daft gala.

Taking some time away from the massive crowds the carnival brought, seniors Scott Kahle, Caleb McCamy, and Tugg Murphy sit down and relax.

What a difference ten years can make. Sitting there thinking to himself, senior Eric Brandt remembers how exciting the senior carnival was when he was younger.

Seniors: Experienced Beginners

• Giving off some heavy patriotic spirit, seniors Sean Conley, Becca Diverty, Jennifer Gorder, Kacy Olmstead, Lindsey Arntzen, Brittney Shull, Spencer Hooker, Scott Kahle, Jed Little, Cathryn Coats, Nicole Beraldi, Gabe Falzarano, Barbie Hull, Chris Jewett, and Tugg Murphy take a stand for the class of '99 during the Fourth of July. It was a wild day, with plenty of screaming, shaving cream, and some major senior pride.

• Hauling a bail of hay for their cow girls bingo during senior carnival, seniors Angela Wade and Amber Erickson use their mighty muscle to bring the bail to the center of the commons. Carnival set up was a busy, hectic time as seniors set up their booths in the commons, main gym, and auxilliary gym.

• Watching the City Council candidates debate over issues like consolidation and jobs, seniors Jennifer Gorder, Ashley Byrd, Peter Arntzen, Heather Mortensen, Mike Morris, and Melanie Marshall listen intently and prepare to get their own questions answered.

• Shielding their eyes from the bright summer sun, seniors Spencer Hooker and Gabe Falzarano hang around during the annual decorating of the Fourth of July float. The seniors met at Laidlaw Transit on the evening of July 2nd to paint posters and blow up balloons for their float.

• Reverting back to their youthful roots, Mrs. Bloom's senior English students Jim Parrott, Julie Painter, Dan Brown, Trevor Bedford, Kirsten Mix, Ruel Deleon, Jacob Fama, Jeff Nuttall, Abel Piercy, and Drinnan Thornton get the opportunity to play with some of the coveted carnival toys. Jeff, unarmed, bravely faces Dan, as the two enjoy a playful little duel. Behind them, Jacob takes a shot at juggling, watching the little white balls carefully, so he won't drop them. The seniors were ready and willing to organize toys for the booths.

Being a senior allows for lots of time to look back and reflect upon past years at the high school. Many turn a crimson shade when remembering their most embarrassing moment. "I remember the school basketball game one week there was here but today! It was out of the stationed Wrangell!" Melissa stated. Lots of seniors have their debut performance on the Measle

Senior Beth Sarvela recalls, "The bell had just rang for lunch and there were tons of people trying to get downstairs. All of a sudden I was on the floor, sprawled out while people tried to walk by me. I was so embarrassed!"

embarrassment came to for a big end and no one the custom team was in senior Cowan of some performance. The stairs were a sore experience for some of our students.

pepsters on parade

Fourth of July is a holiday that everyone can participate in and enjoy. Seniors parade through the streets with spirit and enthusiasm. The senior float created many memorable moments that will never be forgotten. Policemen patrolling the float cramped the style of almost every senior that was active in the event. Senior Justin Dennis re-

"It was awesome; I got covered with shaving cream and Jon Stack sprayed me in the face with a squirt gun!" senior Jesse Curran said.

Shopaholics! Seniors Melanie Crevier and Jesse Curran check out the latest in a catalogue while senior Leili Plasencia watches the swimmers prepare.

Senior Power! Waiting to march into the pep assembly, the senior class mills in the commons. They hold signs proudly displaying their upper class might. These seniors are ready to rock the assembly.

Hansel and Gretel funhouse. Whipping out some cotton candy for the carnival goers, seniors Melissa Brouhard, Hanna Brinkmann, Cassie Hebel, and Claire Brouhard mix that pink fluff.

ROUND TABLE

Back to the Future

Insanity, screaming, outbursts, arguing, bouts of ludicrous laughter and hysterical talk. The Senior Round Table was a wild, wonderful discussion of hopes, dreams and past memories. With four years to look back upon and an unknown future ahead, seniors have a lot on their minds.

Some people have really high goals when it comes to after school plans. "I want to go unungee jumping and be a spy," said senior Katie Poet. Although that would take some major planning (there's no way Bond became 007 overnight), some people have goals which required, um, less skill. "I want to run around the school naked," said senior Claire Brouhard. Sometimes economic reasons hold more importance than mere fun. Senior Cassie Hebel's main goal is to "get a job."

Future goals soon gave way to nostalgia as the seniors pondered their Kayhi past and wandered down a rocky memory road. For senior Abel Piercy, personal accomplishments were most memorable. [I'll remember] "the Clark Cochrane Basketball Tournament lights spectacular that I personally put on." Of course, news events sometimes overshadowed the less turbulent memories of class and school. Senior Aleyné Short has a strong memory of, "OJ Simpson getting off." With any luck, it will be the happy memories these seniors will be sharing with their sleepy grandchildren.

There's a lot to consider before heading into the scary real world. If history does repeat itself, the seniors are sure to use the knowledge they've gained. If not, they'll write history themselves.

Did you know?

1. The seniors earned a record breaking $19,500 at senior carnival, beating the previous record by $4,500.
2. 56 of 145 seniors had GPAs over 3.0, which accounts for 38.6% of the class.
3. The senior class cheer for the pep assembly was "Baby, baby, we're so fine, we're the class of '99."

After four years in high school, the desire to visit far off, beautiful lands can be very strong. "I want to go to Europe," said senior Matt Ohmer.

"I want to jump off the docks once before I graduate. I always wimp out whenever I have the chance," said senior Kristin Coffin.

Sports are a demanding and satisfying part of school. Senior Shawn Hazeltine's goal for high school is to "win state for wrestling."

"What I want to do before I graduate is to hopefully know what I'm going to do after I graduate," said senior Kathleen Moore.

"I want to pour mustard on my sister and her friends, put a leash on them, and make them walk like dogs," said senior April Dela Cruz.

Synchronized Diversity

• Be sure to wear flowers in your hair! A true flower girl, senior Hanna Brinkmann sports an adorably big daisy in her tightly tressed hair. Along side the lovely petals are a couple paper parasols which, though predominantly found in glasses, seem to have found an appropriate place in Hanna's lovely locks.

• It's time to get comfortable. Kicking up his legs and sitting back in his chair, junior Ryan Cronk rests quietly in the commons to enjoy a book that he simply couldn't put down. Sitting on the table is his mug of coffee, sure to give him that extra boost whenever he's feeling sleepy in class.

• Lunch time fun. Using their time to the best of their abilities, sophomore Meghan Paulson and sophomore Lizzy Peters share some anecdotes from their busy day while chowing down on their lunch. Although 35 minutes doesn't sound very short, it really zooms by when talking with friends. Many people stay in the commons during lunch, including sophomores Cassie White and Loren Joy Leonora, who are behind Megan and Lizzy.

• Just plain hanging out. Sitting around on a lazy day, seniors Gabe Falzarano, Scott Kahle, Paul Claasen, Chris Jewitt, and juniors Mike Toole and Nick Tucker find some extra time to lounge around in the commons. We can only guess what they might be waiting for. It might be a new car, a ride, or freedom from these high school walls. But taking a break from the hectic schedules of a typical school day is always a nice thing.

• Don't do it man, don't do it! Laughing in the face of danger, senior Hyrum Neilson thinks he might have figured out a way to keep himself from getting in trouble for talking in class. Senior Chris Giles is completely oblivious to the accident about to take place, and senior Drinnan Thornton looks on in disgust.

What do you like about your class and if you could change anything, what would it be?

"I think we have a pretty good class, people know each other and there's a lot of respect."

- Sophomore Sharli Hayter

"The fact that the maturity level is a little higher. And the fact that we know everybody."

-Senior Tristan Robinson

"There's not enough spirit in the junior class. They don't have any pride in their school, they don't get loud at the pep assembly."

-Junior Becca Neilson

"We would have a good class cheer."

-Sophomore Katie Hopkins

"I am friends with half the people."

- Freshman Amy Serjeant

"I'd want to remove all the immature human beings in my science class."

-Freshman Stephanie Woodruff

"Knowing them all, being friends with them all, having no enemies."

-Freshman Megan Beardsley

"That the class of '99 appears to be not very cliquish, at least compared to other classes. There's a lot more intermixing between the various groups of people."

-Senior Trevor Bedford

"The fact that we're perfect." - Junior Tara Miller

Standing on the beautiful, green, rolling hills, juniors Ryan Avila, Bryan Rodriguez, Becca Churchill, Frank McJunkin, Mike Simpson stare out at Ketchikan's lovely landscape while their pal, Austin Powers, strikes a groovy pose. Juniors Marie Zellmer, Niccole Ripley, and Travis Schenck opt to sit, since their legs are in need of a little bit of rest. Flying in the calm sky above is Olaf the Bumblebee, an import from Norway, known for their two foot bumblebees. These kids sure know how to take a break from the heavy responsibilities of school. Nothing offers a more surefire rest then going outside on a nice day in Ketchikan. Yeah, baby!

Walking a line of danger and daring, these high school juniors take a step out on the high and formidable bar that runs along the hall of the business department. Kenneth McAlpin, Scott Edwards, Bow Bryant, Heidi Weimer, Neil Leonora, Dan Yates, and Scott Kenyon stand tall on the mighty bar, very careful not to lose their balance as they look down at the frightening depths below. Passing below them, freshmen Casey O'Brien and Russell Blanks walk quickly to class, seemingly unaware of the strange formation of juniors taking place on the heavy beams above. Be careful everybody; it's a lot higher than you think.

Prepared Junior Steve Elliot summed up his plans by saying, "I'm going into business." Red hot Junior Aftan Lynch has a career in mind. "I want to be a tough firewoman," Aftan said. Remember Aftan, only you can prevent forest fires. Not suprisingly, some juniors are looking forward to moving to a drier locale. "I want to go to Africa," responded junior Christy Miller, who is planning to travel half way around the globe to do missionary work. Fellow junior Samantha Bass is also preparing to move to a hotter climate, Arizona. Watch out for those scorpions, Samantha and be sure to send a postcard.

Whatever they do and wherever they go, success is sure to follow the class of 2000 as they leave the hallowed halls of Kayhi behind and enter the next millenium.

The class of 2000 is definitely going places. Already hitting the road, they're preparing to see the world. "I jumped a 10 foot high hill and got all four wheels off the ground," said Junior Jason Nichols, who is already burning up pavement. Just remember, your seat belt, Jason. Cars have become a new status symbol among the high school crowd. The class of 2000 owns some of the hottest cars to grace the Kayhi parking lot. Junior Alice Cook ran into a little bit of trouble her first time behind the wheel. "On the first day of my license, I ran a stop sign."

Even though they have one more year of high school, many juniors already have future plans. Junior Tracy Brown has awesome aspirations. "I wanna be a rock star," Tracy said. Maybe someday Tracy will be Ketchikan's very own Spice Boy.

Junior Bobby Allen thinks the theatre in our school is "Groovy." Theatre all the way baby. Thespians forever.

Loni McManigan is still choosing what to do. "I have another year." Before you know it, junior year will have ended.

"After school I'm going to join the army." Said Junior Jack Slagle. Wear some sweet camouflage pants.

Junior Lacy Williams says, "I'm going to go live with my brother in Washington." Take us with you, please.

"I'm taking C.P. classes to prepare for college," said Mica Cermele. Fantastic work, tiger! Keep it up.

Used to be that sitting in the corner was considered lame. You know, like where all the weirdos hang out. Maybe even considered punishment- "You've been a bad boy, Johnny. Go sit in the corner!" It's not like that anymore. In fact, in Kayhi, the corner of the commons is The Place to Be. Think about it. It's got all the chairs and tables anyone could ever want, and a great view for those who are waiting for their ride to show up. The place even has a courtesy phone. So the next time you're stuck for time... grab a chair, like sophomores Travis Martin, Wendy Mackie, Chris Campbell, Vincent Iconcillo, Owen Lee, Tesia Dobrynia, John Paul Lapuz.

Sophomoric Intellect

Sitting at the round lunch table, discussions turn to school pride. Sophomore year is a time to start having school pride. It's the second year in your high school career and you start to appreciate everything a little more. Yet, there are still a few to whom pride does not come easily.

"It bugs me how people don't take pride in the school. They just drop trash and write graffiti on the bathroom stalls," Sophomore Robert Garnick said.

A good clean bathroom is one thing, but supporting school activity is another. "I think there is not enough school spirit. Not many people go to see the J.V. or C basketball games, and barely anyone goes to volleyball, swimming, or wrestling, etc. People give excuses of why not to go, because they are dumb events. Well that's because they aren't participating in them," sophomore Matthew Hanson said.

Even if you're not in a sport, that doesn't mean you can't be a fan. Just remember, varsity isn't the only team. "Maybe 'cause no one goes to the other games, is the reason they lose. If no one showed up to see you play it could be a little discouraging," Sophomore Josh Mutart said.

Pride is a very important part of a successful high school career, aside from the occasional homework. "I don't really have time to go to games. I have a lot of work to get done, and still find time to spend with my friends," sophomore Cynthia Crowl said. Next time a game comes around, go to it and cheer your team to victory.

Did You Know?

Survey done out of 109 sophomores:

1. The three most popular tv programs were MTV shows, South Park, and Dawson's Creek.
2. The average number of homework done every night was between 1 and 3 hours.
3. The four celebrities people most wanted to eat lunch with were Adam Sandler, Michael Jordan, Ben Affleck, and Cameron Diaz.

5. notrptsaniator
6. lesebirtiec

We all have our own opinions, "We need paper towels, soap dispensers and also toilet seat covers," said sophomore Jennifer Azure.

Some people have a different side to things, "Pride is a good thing, but too much of a good thing is bad," said sophomore Holly Temple.

"I hate looking down the hallway and seeing some of the things people have in their lockers," said sophomore Tom Loughead.

"This year has been very hard. I spend 3 hours, 5 minutes, and 15 seconds on homework every night," said sophomore Katie Corrao.

"Pride is good sometimes, sometimes it's bad, but school pride is excellent," said sophomore Brittany Hassell.

ROUND tAbLe

Breaking New Ground

Entering high school is a pretty scary event. Visions of power crazed security patroling the halls, mountains of homework and cruel teachers fill the mind of nearly every freshman. Thankfully, most of these fears are far from the truth, as many freshmen discover.

Freshman CJ Seludo didn't have time to worry about other students, she just wanted to be able to find her way around school. "I thought I wouldn't be able to find my classes," CJ said. Kayhi can be pretty confusing at first, but even the most puzzled frosh can be school soon in next to no time.

Freshman Levi Webb will probably be avoiding liquids this year. "I thought there was gonna be big, hairy monsters in the bathroom," Levi said. Don't worry Levi, we'll protect you.

Over the years, who hasn't heard the tales of initiation? For the most part, the stories are more legend than fact. Only a few unfortunates are likely to feel the wrath of the upper-classmen. "I was walking in the hall and these kids picked me up and threw me in the garbage," said freshman Chad Medel.

Overall, Kayhi is definitely a pretty cool place to be. Freshmen year is a time to discover new things and learn about life. It's the doorway to the future, a time to make pals, explore who you are and what you want to become.

Did you know?

- 51% of the freshman class were bringing home the bacon by working last summer.
- Freshman account for an amazing 33% percent of Kayhi's student body.

Lori	Ross	Kern

Freshman Chelsea Woodell said, "I'm afraid I'll have to pucker up to senior square some day in front of everyone."

Ray Dell was afraid of, "My sister, she already initiated me this summer, I didn't know if she'd get me again."

Freshman Britta Christensen sweetly smiles and tells us, "I was so scared of walking into the wrong class!"

Nicholas Escobar tells us an embarrassing moment, "I slept -walked outside in my underwear." Word.

Freshman Christine Monte-cillo says, "I don't mind the Charter School, but they're so loud!"

ROUND tAbLe

Talk about Dedication

The Ketchikan High School staff is dedicated to the well-being of the student body. Most teachers have anywhere from 4 to 6 classes a day, which totals up to 19 to 29 classes a week; but their week does not end there. Teachers are required to arrive at school thirty minutes before first period and stay thirty minutes after seventh period. The hours that they spend working at home after school and during the weekends are endless.

Teachers are here for the student's benefits, and one thing that they hate to hear are excuses as to why homework is not completed. Over the years some teachers have heard enough different reasons to fill a short novel. Mr. Kralis from the Kayhi science department has heard some doozies in his days.

"I left it on the bus. What was it anyway?" and "You actually expected us to do homework on our trip?" said Mr. Kralis. Mrs. Zelensky has heard some great excuses in her day as an English and French teacher. "My little sister got a hold of it and colored it with crayons. Can I get some more time to do it again?" someone once told Mrs. Zelensky. She might have even heard a few in french... Many teachers have some good first year teaching stories. "In my first year of teaching, I overslept and came to school 15 minutes late. Imagine my embarrassment when I walked into class and found Mr. Kennedy teaching my students," said Mr. Walker. Even with a few slip-ups between the students and faculty of Ketchikan High School, the educational bonds hold tight.

Say cheese! Showing their pearly cousins and now fellow teachers Mrs. Karlik and Mrs. Leo. Both are now fine examples of the Kayhi staff.

Did You Know?

- Faculty work an average of 15 extra hours a week outside of school.
- Mr. Walker and Mrs. Troina both graduated in 1989.
- Mrs. Conley was the recipient of the 1998 Business Teacher of the Year Award.
- The ratio of male to female teachers is almost 1:1.

When students in Mr. Hughes' class forget to do things, he has one thing to say to them: "you lose"

Some people have a different outlook on life.

Ms. Patton said "Life is full of gay little farts of intense delight."

Many teachers have some words of wisdom Mrs.

Leo's advice? Always succinct. "Get it done."

Mr. Cote knows how to motivate kids.

His famous mantra is "I hate kids and I like to see them work like slaves."

What school would be complete without a great principal.

Kayhi's is Mr. Kennedy.

Skillful Play

• Working together to get at the ball, sophomore Aleisha Filyaw and junior Becca Neilson are doing their best to stop the Lathrop team from getting any baskets. This tricky two-some is great with footwork as they push against their opponents, prepared to do whatever it takes to bring home the victory. These Lady Kings are a couple of smooth players.

• Clapping hands in friendly sportsmanship, the volleyball team walks off the court. Senior Nicole Pavlik, sophomore Janae Thomas, freshmen Jonnae Ostrom and Brandyce Nelson, and sophomore Cassie White are happy to thank the other team for a good game.

What do you find to be the most satisfying aspect of being/having been involved in sports?

"It keeps me in shape and gives you competition against the best in the school and all over the state. Baseball and basketball have to be the best sports to play. You get to travel and play the best in the state and country. Sports are the most fun thing about school. If there were no sports, school would not have anything to look forward to."
-Junior Donald Munhoven

"The most satisfying aspect of being involved in a sport is the final product of winning and staying fit. I choose to participate in my chosen sports because they are all physically demanding and have been ones my family also participates in. I think that the support from coaches, students, and the community makes them really fun to be involved in."
-Sophomore Cassie White

"I believe wrestling gives me a legitimate excuse not to do my homework. If I wasn't wrestling, I would have way too much free time on my hands and wouldn't do my homework anyway. No matter how weird and alienated I feel, when I look at my peers in wrestling, I feel normal again."
-Junior Leif Thompson

"The competition."

"When I'm playing a more skilled team, teamwork and determination are what decide the outcome of the game(who wins)."

Fighting the Upstream Battle

With the strength of Flipper, the dedicated members of the Kayhi swim team splash their way to victory year after year. That funky chlorine smell, the tedious laps and the stiff competition hasn't daunted these swimmers. Traveling to meets all over Alaska, they have won impressive titles, both locally and state wide. This year alone, the Kayhi team won the first Southeast water polo tournament while Senior Sean Seaver broke the state record for the 50 yard free-style.

Talk about time consuming! The swim team practices six days a week, morning and night. Not only do the swimmers paddle the pool, these buff athletes also lift weights to keep those bodies toned. Balancing schoolwork and pool time is no easy task, but they have managed to do both, succeeding in and out of the water while ranking as one of Alaska's top teams.

E. Kloxin

Senior Sean Seaver tears through the chlorine-filled water like a shark! Perhaps the Victoria's Secret girls are waiting at the finish line in bikinis. They love swimming. Go Speed Go!!!!

Senior Melanie Marshall takes a breath as she quickly glides through the sparkling water of the Kayhi pool. O.k., it's not that graceful, but she sure can thrash up that water with her ripped shoulders.

E. Kloxin

E. Kloxin

A break from the swim routine! Sitting together in the commons are senior captains Erik Christensen and Jennifer Gilson, who work hard to help guide their team to swimming victories.

Those clever swimmers have several methods of adding drag to their lap time, forcing them to work extra hard.

- Layering on several pairs of tights and a couple bathing suits slows them down in the water.
- The female swimmers are in no danger of getting razor burn. They can't shave until regionals.

- Smooth! Even the guys have to de-fuzz their arms, legs and chests for those big meets.

E. Kloxin

Listening carefully to the coach as he gets them ready for their Ketchikan meet, senior Jennifer Gilson, sophomore Wendy Mackie, senior Sean Seaver, sophomore Valerie Ah Yong, senior Erik Christensen, and sophomore Brian Bergeron get themselves geared up for the arduous, but enjoyable, task ahead of them. Swimming can be tough sometimes, but it's a sport that's definitely well worth it.

Freshman Aubree Danner makes waves in the pool with complete concentration. It takes a group of truly fearless swimmers to get the job done, and this determined girl is sure to help her team do it.

E. Klostin

Junior Natalie Ney prepares Hanna Brinkman for the match of her life. Ya' gotta toughen' up kid, or dem' waves will take you for da ride of your life! Ain't just fun and games is it ladies?

E. Klostin

E. Klostin

A. Fisher

Leaving the competition groveling in her wake, freshman Tara Potter comes up for air before disappearing below the surface. Outfitted in her trusty swim cap and sexy goggles, Tara is definitely a bathing beauty.

Senior Erik Christensen shoves a weakling opponent under the waves as he makes a play for the ball in a game of water polo. In the pool, Erik is a machine of destruction, ready to maul any competition.

The swimmers have to toughen up to deal with the drawbacks of practically living in the pool.

- On average, they swim 6 to 7 miles a day. With 11 practices a week, that's over 1,700 miles every year!
- The pool water is hardly gentle. Chlorine bleaches hair over time.
- Kept at only 85 degrees fahrenheit, those early morning dips really wake you up.

Give me ten laps! These coaches know how to get their team members into shape. Coaches Amy Mead and Jeff Lawrence work hard with their swimmers so they'll always be in supreme condition

Did you know?

1. They practice 5 days a week, 3:30 P.M. on weekdays and 10:00 A.M. on Saturdays, usually around Ward Lake.
2. On average, the Cross Country runs over 40 hours a season. That's the same as an average work week.
3. Cross Country wears those cute little spandex tights because it helps hold the muscle to the bone and prevents damage.
4. Cross Country originated in Indiana.
5. It has one of the shortest competitive seasons. It only lasts one month (South-east).
6. The night before the meet the mostly common eaten dinner is spaghetti.
7. The most common injuries are pulled muscles.

Strutting their stuff, freshmen Eric Moyer, Chad Medel, Westen Wade, and Nicholas Escobar walk proudly after an exhilarating run at Ward Lake.

Escaping the pressure of cross-country, senior Jacob Fama imagines that he's in a peaceful village, quiet and serene, but then realizes he is running for victory.

Going the Extra Mile

Cross country is a time to work off extra stress and to get in shape. It is also a time to make new friends and have fun. Sophomore Holly Thompson said, "I enjoy the friendships and fun that we have as a team. We do some crazy stuff and have a lot of fun!"

To be able to do your best when running, there are always some little things that each person has to help them on their way. Sophomore Katie Hopkins said, "To get ready for a race I stretch out for a half hour or more and do warm-up exercises with the rest of the team. The night before I eat lots of carbohydrates like spaghetti, so I'll have lots of energy and beat all the Juneau girls!"

Standing in the cold, sophomore Katy Markiewicz and junior Erin Jakubek wait patiently for their turn to show off their running skills.

Wrestling captians, seniors Jacob Fama, Spencer Hooker, and Shaun Haseltine, stand tall, prepared to whip the team into shape. These bold leaders are great influences for their team.

Did you know?

1. The top five ranking takedowns were: senior Shaun Haseltine with 80, senior Spencer Hooker with 59, sophomore Joey Fama with 39, senior Tim Currall with 33, and junior Jonathan Nunez with 23.

2. The top five fastest pins: senior Abel Piercy: 0:11, senior Ruel Deleon: 0:13, junior Steve Beedle: 0:14, and sophomore Geoff Nordlund: 0:19.

T. Currall

Working his wrestling magic on his opponent, sophomore Joey Fama is doing his best to get some major points for his team, who are busy cheering him on. This is Joey's second year on the Kayhi wrestling team, and he has done a great job, including having the third most takedowns. Wrestling is a sport for the individual, but it is also a team sport, and these guys are always ready to support each other, no matter what the crisis may be.

Courtesy of Kayhikan Public Library and Kayhikan Museum

Used quietly on the ground, senior Spencer Hooker prepares to outdo his opponent, who has both arms around the Kayhi wrestler. It's a tough position to be in, but Spencer's sure to get out.

Champion of the world, Matt Hamilton uses his super strength to lift mighty senior Abel Piercy up into the air. That is a pretty fantastic sight to behold.

Cowardly Courage Wrestlers at their best!

Wrestling is a sport of hard work, determination, weight, and buffness. Wrestlers spend the season working out, losing weight and trying to stay in their weight classes or move down, and keeping their grades up to travel. Sophomore Geoff Nordlund said, "I decided to wrestle this year because I've been involved with wrestling for 10 years and seem to be doing okay at it." Whether just joining the team or a returning member, the wrestling season has had its memorable moments. Senior Shaun Haseltine recalls, "The most memorable traveling experience for wrestling was when Mr. Collins put the van in the ditch at the Bartlett tournament." Whether it's car trouble or not, wrestlers miss a lot of school.

Getting behind in school work is a major pain for some wrestlers, especially during the middle of the year. Others may not see it that way. Senior Tim Currall said, "Wrestling is great, I get to skip two or three days a week!" Good job guys, keep it up!

1. Whenever the volleyball team warms up, they go through a drill called pepper, which is when every player has to bump, set, and spike.
2. When the volleyball teams goes on trips, a freshman is assigned to carry the medical kit and the ball bag.
3. The C team placed first in the Southeast Tournament.
4. This year the volleyball teams ran 6-2, which means they had two setters, one in the front row and one in the back.
5. Many players consider the setter to be the hardest position on the team.

I got it! Sophomore Jennifer Parker, Danette Kahle and Carlie Parker are prepared to hit the ball back over to the opponent's side of the net.

Cheerleading Facts

1. They say about 30 cheers a game.
2. They practice Monday-Thursday at 3:15-5:15 or 6:00-8:00 P.M., and sometimes on Saturday from 10:00-12:00 A.M.
3. Practices are held in the auxiliary gym, the hallway, the green room, or the commons.
4. Cheerleaders support wrestlers and boys and girls basketball so they have a longer season than most sports.
5. Cheerleaders must learn a variety of sideline chants, sideline dances, floor cheers, school songs, and stunts, which requires a lot of memory skills.
6. It takes them 2-4 hours to make up a formation for a game depending on the cheer.

Sideline Cheering

This group of girls can get the crowd to cheer with the best of them. "The thing I like the best about being a cheerleader is knowing that I'm out there supporting my school's team the best I can," said sophomore Gini Trimble. That's one of the most important things a cheerleader can do. "It helps me to escape from my problems, gives me incentive to get good grades, and keeps me in shape," said sophomore Michelle Trumble. Good grades are always a plus when involved in a school sport, yet nerves can change anything, "I do get nervous, I just tell myself that I'll do fine, and it doesn't matter what people think," said sophomore Megan Young. Everyone gets a little stage fright when they first start out, then you get used to it, and it doesn't take long to realize that you're out there for the team.

Stealing the ball, sophomore TJ Milner prepares to make a b-line for the basket. Quick and crafty, TJ's skills on the court are nothing less than phenomenal.

Defying the laws of gravity, junior Donald Alderman floats in midair as he prepares to launch the ball over the head of another player and into the basket.

Drill Team Members

The drill team at Kayhi has always been full of agile, graceful girls. This year is of no exception. Graceful performances and upbeat dances keep the crowd interested during half-time. It takes a lot of hard work and determination to participate in drill team. Spending seven to ten hours a week practicing is a lot of effort to give to one sport.

Many of the drill teamers are returning members. The hard work certainly pays off in the end when they get superior ratings. Senior Laura Lapinski stated, "I've been in drill team for four years, so I couldn't imagine not doing it my senior year. The best thing about being in drill team is performing!"

Even though most of us are not flexible and talented enough to do half the stunts that the drill team can do with so much ease, it's definitely fun watching them!

We Are the Champions

Kayhi basketball players, both male and female are the toughest there ever was. Not only are the basketball players required to compete in tournaments, run sprints and scrimmage, but some attend two practices a day, averaging 4 hours of practice time. Good golly! Junior Tom Byron grips the ball with all his might not worrying for a second about the other team. What ya'll afraid of? Leather and air? You better be prepared to get abused by the Kayhi Kings, cause we got big buff boys like Tom to work the court.

At the beginning of the year, many Kayhi students join various teams, ranging from basketball to softball, looking forward to practices with friends and a few celebrational parties for their successes. After a few months, those reasons for joining the team are forgotten; the only thing that matters is the ultimate goal: being the champions. Countless hours are spent perfecting jump-shots and curve-balls, so that when the stakes are high, whipping the competition will be as easy as taking candy from a baby. With skilled athletes in top form composing teams for every sport at Kayhi, it can be assured that they will be having victories for years to come, adding both honor and prestige to Kayhi's name.

Structured Mayhem

• Picking up trash for Interact, juniors Donnie Soderstrom, Edelweiss Muench, and Aaron Thweatt help beautify Kayhi.

• Letting his goofy side show during the normally formal National Honor Society inductions, second year NHS member, senior Matt Wolf, has a little fun with the dinner wear. Why waste two perfectly good cups? They make such good alien ears.

• Gathering information for debate class, sophomore Chasina Haynes and freshman Jonnae Ostrom read articles while junior Caitlin O'Brien looks for the books she needs. One of the most important parts of debate is researching information for speeches and note cards. Preparation is key.

Why do you choose to participate in the clubs you're in, and how do you feel about them?

"I love to get involved in many things. I like to meet new people, and clubs are a great way. I think clubs are good because you can be a part of something fun and interesting."

-Junior Erin Guthrie

"I think it's nice to belong to something. Being part of a group is always more fun than standing alone."

-Junior Ryan Cronk

"Because trumpets rule."

-Junior Karl McClendon

"I like to participate because I meet new people and in some of them, like Interact, you get to help people."

-Freshman Stacy Stone

"It's fun and interesting and because you get to travel."

-Sophomore Meghan Paulson

"I joined the clubs I'm in because either they need my help, I need their help, or it's a good place to pick up foxy chicks."

-Senior Jim Moran

M. Leary

Interact is a great way to have fun while making a difference in your community. Helping the communities youth at workshop, special events etc... It gives many members a great feeling. " I really liked working at the mall Halloween party this year, making reindeer hats. It was fun to see all the little kids walking around in their hats afterwards."

-junior Margaret Roth

M. Leary

" HIV/AIDS Awareness Teen Task Force is awesome. The first thing that the club requires is that you are open minded, because AIDS is somewhat controversial. I think that one of the best things for people to know is that AIDS is not a picky disease. Your gender does not matter nor does your age, race, religion, or life style matter. If you don't take care, it will take you."

-junior Pres. Jeff Williams

M. Leary

Interact is currently one of Kayhi's largest clubs along with pep band and pep club. With all the fun it's members have, that's not hard to believe. More and more members join every meeting. " This is my first year in Interact. I liked all the fun we had over the year. If I was in Kayhi next year I would join again. I really liked the talent show."

-senior April Delacruz

M. Leary

" The AIDS Teen Task Force is really fun. I really like the demonstrations we do over the year. Such as painting our faces white, hanging symbolic signs on lockers, etc... This is my first year being involved and I already know that I will enroll again next year. I have never had anybody close to me have AIDS, but the thought of helping those that do is a great feeling."

-sophomore JoAna Chang

M. Leary

Interact is a great way to get in your community service hours required to graduate. It is also a lot of fun. " I like being in Interact because it's a good way to participate and help the community. We get to do all sorts of stuff. We help out with the Halloween party at the mall, paint the homeless shelter etc... It's grrrrreat, as Tony the tiger would say."

-junior Renee Woodruff

M. Leary

" Being a part of AIDS Awareness makes me feel good about myself. I enjoy teaching the community AIDS awareness strategies and how to apply them in a family setting. This group of people are great to work with. I enjoy the meetings where we play HIV/AIDS related games. I would recommend this club to almost anyone if not everyone. It takes a strong person to join; are you ready?"

-junior Marie Estipona

Talk about dedication! Members of these clubs are very dedicated to helping the community. Seniors Jesse Curran, Erin Barnes, Nicole Pavlik, Leili Plasencia, Sarah Weston, Melissa Cowan, April Delacruz, sophomores Lindsey Barnes, Alisa Gubatayo, and Ellen Armstrong enjoy a great meeting. Senior Jeff Nuttall looks through AIDS Awareness pins, and senior Patsy Major hangs symbolic signs on lockers during a AIDS Awareness demonstration.

Getting the word out! During first quarter many AIDS Awareness members including junior Shannon Kloxin participated in a locker demonstration. The purpose was to put an end to many stereotypes put forth by the public.

Leader of the pack! Being a leader of Interact is very challenging at some times, but always fun. Leading a club takes organization. Senior Katie Poet leads a lunch time Interact meeting stressing the does and don't about helping other's.

Crunch and munch! One of the great things about Interact is that the meetings are during lunch so you eat and listen at the same time. Juniors Keith Davis and Donnie Soderstrom pay close attention while nibbling away at their lunch.

Even though choir is fun, members have to loosen up a little. Senior Hyrum Neilson stands in a shadow, shaking his arms to relax, and senior Ariel Manabat jokes with a fellow choir member, while Leon Gwin hangs out before a Concert Choir performance.

At a final Treble Choir practice, junior Caitlin O'Brien sits at the piano contemplating the music, while freshman Amanda Burrous looks on. Freshmen Christina Kralis and Kayla Marshall share nervous whispers as freshman Elisa Bolling bites her lips with anticipation.

"In a concert, the guys had a solo part that we had to blur out loud and clear, and not hold back, or else it would ruin the moment. So, I sang out at my best, but the only problem was that it was at the wrong time! The whole choir turned into utter confusion and panic, and we ended up having to start the whole song over." --Junior Mike Rauwolf

"The thing that I love most about Concert Choir is the singing. Once everyone gets into the swing of the music, it becomes magic. When I went to my first Southeast festival in Juneau, I had the time of my life. The people there were awesome, and the emotion we shared with our music was incredible!" --Senior Kathie Osburn

R. White

"My favorite memory of concert choir is also kind of embarrassing. Once, my friend Becca asked if she could borrow my chapstick. When I threw my chapstick to Becca on the opposite side of the room, it hit the ceiling and made a loud noise and then it almost hit her in the head on the way back down." --Junior Lindsay Hofstedt

"I love to sing! That's why I chose to join Treble Choir. I also like learning new songs, and once we get into the groove, we sound so good. Luckily, I haven't had anything embarrassing happen to me in choir yet, although when we performed in our first concert, I was really nervous that I would mess up." --Freshman Sarah Truitt

"The thing that I hate most about Treble Choir is people who talk too much and aren't serious about the music. I wish everyone would try their best and then we would sound a lot better. Sometimes I sing the wrong notes, and I get so embarrassed, but I try my best so I will be perfect at concerts." --Freshman Helena Muench

"I think that getting the chance to perform in front of so many people is probably the best thing about Treble Choir. The worst thing is when nobody pays attention and then Mr. Hughes gives us lectures. My favorite memory was during our first concert. I looked into the audience and saw a friend singing along." --Sophomore Holly Temple

Playing an instrument is a wonderful way to express oneself and do something artistic. Although it takes a lot of practice to gain musical talent and dexterity, band is still a really enjoyable experience, with a great deal of benefits. "It's fun."

K. Post

Band is a great place to be part of something that so many people really appreciate. Performances are especially great for spreading the beauty of music. "I really enjoy performing. It makes me happy to be able to share my love of music with other people."

-Senior Trista Linder

K. Post

A long time spent on excessive practice and playing is never easy, especially when it seems like a song has been played too many times. But in the end, exhilarating performances make it worthwhile. "[Band] is fun, but sometimes it's too long."

-Freshman Kateri Somrak

K. Post

Any club or class can be an enjoyable experience when there's a great teacher at the helm. Sometimes even tedious tasks can be interesting if they're done in a pretty cool way. "[Band's] fun to be in because [Mr. Bjur] makes it fun."

-Freshman Megan Beardsley

K. Post

Many would claim that music is something that unites everyone. No matter what kind of music people like, it's their appreciation for such a beautiful art form that drives its existence. "Music is filled with wonders waiting to be discovered."

-Freshman Jamilah Pitchford

K. Post

There are a lot of important aspects of band, but the thing that most people think of that really defines it is the great performances they do. The members of band are in it because they love to play and get a joy out of music. "Band is nifty."

-Freshman Tristan Dwyer

Band is the place to be for musical expression. Playing some killer riffs on his guitar, junior Ryan Pickrell practices a little tune he's been working on. Sticking to more classic instruments, juniors Mike Rickert and Geoff Nordlund get back to their big band roots with their trumpets. They wait patiently for Mr. Bjur's instructions to begin playing again. Softly pushing the buttons on her instrument, junior Angela Pfeifer plays her flute like a beautiful bird, and lets the lovely notes float through the room.

T. Curral

Getting out his bass clarinet to begin practicing, senior Ricki Pickrell talks with one of his friends as junior Micah Cermele waits for class to start. It's amazing to see the carrying cases for the instruments: from flutes to tubas, they come in all sizes.

T. Curral

Giving his sheet music a quick once over, sophomore Gavin Piercy, reed in mouth, is ready to play his bassoon. Behind him, senior Misty Hudson, and juniors Ryan Mortensen and Therese Beaver are all set to start producing some music.

ressed in his best is the NHS advisor Mr. Bolling. The National Honor Society induction is one of the biggest events of the year for those who participate in it. Dressing up and having a ceremony is one way to start off a club with many new and returning members.

Seniors Annie Fisher, Elizabeth Kloxin, Katie Poet, and Matt Wolf take a little time out at the NHS inductions. Katie and Matt are also involved in SBA, which keeps them busy during the school year trying to keep the classes peppy and be honorable at the same time!

NHS is not all hard work and no play. Clowning around are seniors Melanie Crevier and Laili Plasencia. It's a tough job, but somebody has to keep the atmosphere upbeat! The inductions are an occasion to dress up and show off your slick side. Seniors Jim Moran and Jeff Nuttall put on their fancy suits, had a little trouble with the ties, (clip-ons aren't in style anymore), showed their classmates what can be expected from them for the rest of the year, and strutted their stuff in style.

Taking a break from the seriousness of the National Honor Society meeting, senior Sean Conley ponders his many experiences with NHS. As a second year member, Sean has had many memorable moments with this particular group. Keep up the good work Sean!

Thrilled to have been accepted to NHS, junior Jon Erickson stands tall and proud in the library where the inductions were held. It's going to take a lot of hard work and persistence to keep up with this fast moving crowd, but anyone with enough talent and motivation can do it!

Being a part of a student government is a great way to prepare oneself for the real world that is centered around politics. "It is a very educational experience for me and it's cool because I get to experience student government."

-Alisa Gubatayao, 10

If someone were to ask an SBA member about the techniques used to plan and prepare for big events that the school looks forward to, the only answer will be to join and find out! "The secrets we share will never be told. They're kept safe and sound."

-Trista Linder, 12

Being accepted to a club can teach a student many things. Community service and volunteering ones' time can teach many lessons. As a first year member, senior Jim Moran has found that, "scholarship and leadership are not important, because those candles fell over."

There are many traits it takes to be in National Honor Society, after one gets accepted they feel very fortunate to have been selected as one of the few members. "Being in NHS makes me feel important because I'm part of an elite group."

-Katherine Short, 11

Opportunities that arise from SBA are endless. "Student Body Association, regardless of where you may be, provides students with experiences that they will utilize in the near future as well as later in life. The leadership and social opportunities SBA offers are difficult to find anywhere else in a high school student's life."

-Senior Erik Christensen

Sometimes being a part of a group filled with excellent students makes one appreciate one's peers and what they have to offer. "It's a great honor to be in NHS since it's the top students in the class. It's a fine experience."

-Melissa Cowan, 12

"Playing all these fun songs, and being able to watch the game for free is the best. The difference between regular band and pep-band is less practice and there is a bigger age difference. The best song is 'Good Golly Miss Molly.'"

-Junior Tony Martinez

"I like the excitement and enthusiasm that is generated while we play. Everyone seems to be more excited and enthusiastic about the game, when we are there. The songs I like the best are 'Louie, Louie' and the 'Hey song.'"

-Senior Christy John

"The best part about it is, by far, being able to play load, and dressing stupid is great too! The funniest thing was on a cut off, Mr. Bjur wacked the flute stand and sprayed the contents every which way."

-Junior Bob Allen

"Every once in a while we'll get a great turnout at games, but other times not, and sometimes they are peppy, but for the most part people think that they are too 'Cool' to be peppy. I hate it because as pep-club pres. It kind of stresses you out."

-Sophomore Janae Thomas

"The funniest thing that we've ever done was when very few pep-club members showed up, and we ran over and did the 'hey pep-band, how do you feel?' cheer, and ran back and reversed roles. Good songs are 'Peter Gunn' or 'Wild Thing.'"

-Junior Therese Beaver

"Being in pep-club has given me great opportunities to make friends and travel. It's too bad not every game or meet has had the gym packed, but over all the years I've seen it improve, Yeah, and being peppy isn't bad."

-Senior Troy Narvaez

Displaying the right to assemble in the name of peppiness, freshman, Stacy Stone, sophomore Tom Loughead, junior Jon Erickson, and Mr. Walker all play twister while sophomore Michelle Steward make sure no one cheats. Get your instruments and get ready to make some noise, juniors Ryan Pickrell and Joel Cuplin, really know how to get down. As Ryan Mortensen, Beth Sarvela, and Jake McDonald all get ready to go out there and belt it out.

Freshmen Christina Kralis and Christine Stack make a pretty picture in the mall. Drama nerds? What? We choose to say we're realistically challenged. Drama trips are so fun; if only life was one long drama trip. Everyone is always so good, they never break the rules.

Freshmen Kalee Bolshakoff, Erin Ruppert, and seniors Jeremy Cloudy, Tugg Murphy, Scott Kenyon, Jared Plumb, Kevin Johnson, talk about the crazy stuff that goes down in drama. Are we having a whole lotta fun yet boys and girls?!?!?

Born to ride! Senior Kevin Johnson gives a speech on his prized four wheeler. Kevin's one lucky guy, 'cause it's obvious that the other students envy that mean bike of his. Getting ready to swing, Ms. Patton grabs senior Ricki Pickrell by the shirt to teach him exactly what this part is all about. It's important to capture the exact nuances of every character one plays. Meanwhile, junior Brie Kenoyer and senior Claire Brouhard have some fun crashing around on the stage during tryouts.

Rehearsing for The Tempest, senior Kathie Osburn gets down on her knees before junior Josh Wilson, who is busy reading his lines. In the background, junior Tiffany Gillian gathers her vibe to get ready for her part. Acting requires strict discipline and a lot of creativity.

Freshman John Whipple raises his hands in fear, as junior Bobby Allen frowns in the distance. Tryouts for the Shakespearian play The Tempest make you do the wildest things imaginable. Beware the man in white. The drama kids rip it up man! Be afraid, be very afraid.

E. Kloxin

E. Kloxin

Sophomore Angelina Martin has been involved in drama for two years. It was her high pitched shrieks that were heard during The Crucible last year. She also acted as a serving wench during a medieval dinner, where she worked hard to help make everything run smoothly.

Being involved in drama, weird stuff can happen that is really hard to forget. "I died when Sam Elliot accidentally mooned the whole class during a monologue, he only meant to show us his underwear but he pulled too much down."

-Junior Melissa Morris

E. Kloxin

E. Kloxin

"Drama is always a fun class cause we get to do fun stuff like scaring the rest of the school. People will walk by our class and see us doing nutty stuff and wonder what are you doing? People don't always understand us crazy drama kids, but we have fun!"

-Junior Rico Martinez

Junior Travis Schenck has been in many Kayhi plays all through high school. From his humorous performance in The Tempest to his disturbing portrayal of a Nazi in The Sound of Music, Travis' dramatic skills have helped to make many Kayhi plays great.

E. Kloxin

E. Kloxin

"The best thing about being President of Thespians is making the underlings do my bidding, ha, ha, ha. Being the supreme ruler has helped me to develop high goals. All kidding aside, thespians is a pretty cool group."

-Senior Hallie Engel

"Our class is so much fun, and for a beginning drama class, we are really good. But the one thing I remember the most was this really scary dramatic interp that Brittany Hewitt did. She was all crazy-like, pretending to stick a pin in her eye."

-Senior Clover Pettett

It's sophomore Brock Taylor's first year in Debate, but already, he's in love. "I like the long speeches, bs'ing is so much fun. I also enjoy making up speeches, that's my favorite part of debate. The best debate I was ever involved with was one between Sarah Keene and Johanna Johnson because I did a killer negative speech." Debate allows students to meet other students who enjoy the same thing: arguing.

Freshman Erika VanSlyke has enjoyed her first year of ACDC by meeting a lot of new people who are a lot of fun to work with. "We have been learning about the brain, and that's really cool, but even cooler has been learning about dreams. That's part of the brain section. It's really interesting to learn how different dreams translate into different meanings, sometimes strange, unimaginable things."

Senior Jacob Fama is old school when it comes to the subject of ACDC. Fama has been a member for 3 years now! "We learn about stuff like the brain and all kinds of other interesting information. I have enjoyed learning about the brain the most, it makes me feel smart." don't think we'll ever need to worry about Fama's intelligence, but maybe he jokes he plays. "We put markers on peoples faces when they sleep on trips."

Junior Seth Walton is also quite new at the game of Debate. "What I like the most about Debate is the public speaking, because it's a good skill for life. The other advantage is it gives you new experiences. I have been able to travel with the team, meet people and talk with people from other towns. My favorite is doing expository speeches, I get to persuade people, he-he."

Junior Caitlin O'Brien has been in debate three years, and she loves going up against a team that she knows are intimidated by her cause then she feels power! "My favorite speech I ever gave was about non-conformists in history. I got a command at state for it, which is a really big deal in the world of debate. The most fun was getting to make jokes about nudists and the Amish."

Freshman Darcy Bengaard has enjoyed her first year of ACDC very much so. "I have a lot of fun when we get to travel to different places and meet people. We also have a blast when we go in after school. We meet Monday's and Thursdays. I think the coolest thing that we have learned about so far is opera. It would seem kinda dumb, but it's really interesting. I feel like it helps me out at doing better in school."

Seniors Abel Piercy and Jacob Fama laugh hysterically at the pain they bestow upon freshman Darcy Bengaard. Junior Katy Parrot watches in the background, "Man I'm glad that I'm an upperclassman." The experience, and the abuse she receives as a freshman are all part of the beauty of ACDC. Junior Travis Schenck and sophomore Brock Taylor argue with Mrs. Sande. Perhaps she didn't want them using their arguing abilities against her.

Trying to keep from falling asleep during a debate lecture, freshman Jill Walker takes notes on a current issue. Staying up till the wee hours of the morning researching, debaters are not the most well rested students at Kayhi, but definitely informed about the world today.

Eloquently defending her case, sophomore Johanna Johnson makes her point in debate class while preparing for an upcoming tournament. After intense research and study, the debate students form strong cases supported by facts and stats.

Freshman Kristen Kuehl stares deep into the depths of her notecards for debate. "Just once I would like to see some cookies in here." But debate students get something better than cookies. They get to argue day after day with their class mates and they don't even get in trouble. How fun.

Float like a butterfly, sting like a bee! Senior Annie "Golden Gloves" Fisher and junior Katy Parrott duke it out as senior Jacob Fama and freshman Darcy Bengard prepare to break things up if Katy-tries to take a bite out of Annie's ear.

Errors are unacceptable. Carefully scanning her yearbook page for mistakes, senior Elizabeth Kloxin fulfills an important part of the editing process. The best editing takes place during the late night sessions for finishing pages. The yearbook members know how important error-free pages are.

Editors know that yearbook is not all fun and games. They spend much of their time helping staff members and revising pages that have mistakes. Advisor Mrs. Leo, seniors Kirsten Mix, Annie Fisher, and Cara Wallace diligently work in order to meet an important deadline.

Being the yearbook advisor can be physically draining as well as worthwhile as Mrs. Leo proves, conducting the fourth hour class with the ease of a newborn bird in the air. Scoping out her camera, junior Melissa Leary checks her gear to make sure that the film she took for her latest deadline didn't get exposed! Keep it shut! Seniors Katie Poet, Brittany Hewitt, and Elizabeth Kloxin keep senior Tim Currall from exiting the light room. The strength of 3 females can't keep a mighty wrestler in forever, though!

Pondering words of wisdom for his next page, junior Jeff Williams stares into space during a very productive class day. As a second year student, Jeff is as pleased with the book this year as he was last year. He plans to stick with this class until he graduates. Keep up the good work, Jeff!

Working hard with very little time, sophomores Chelsey Richardson finishes writing out the copy for one of her academic pages. Yearbook can be a pretty tough class when the deadlines are at hand and there's still lots to do, but this dedicated staff member sure knows how to work.

Yearbook is a good avenue to learn the names of everyone. "Not that many people go to Kayhi, but yearbook really opens you up to everyone who is here because they all have to make it into the book. And being an editor, I'm the one who has to make that happen."

-Senior Drinnan Thornton

As a first year member on staff, taking pictures of school activities that will be remembered can be an exciting opportunity for some people. Yearbook is a place where people are able to work together a lot. "It's a really fun class and it has cool people in it."

-Junior Tracy Day

"I like yearbook because it gives me a chance to become a part of the school and a part of something that everyone will remember, and best of all, it's down right fun!" Being on yearbook allows people to write history, along with being part of it.

-Senior Katherine Osburn

"Sometimes, I feel like I'm way past deadline and would be better off quitting, but then I see how cool all the pages are turning out and work extra hard to get all done and done right." Sometimes the best things in life are only achieved through hard work.

-Senior Hallie Engel

"Yearbook is the bane of my existence and it takes up so much of my time, but I'm happy in the thought that when I'm older and with my grandchildren, I can brag about my editor-in-chief status and point out all the pages that I slaved away on."

-Junior Jesse Curran

Contrary to popular belief, being on staff is not all fun and games. A lot of work goes into the 192 page book, and the staff works very hard. "Yearbook is fun until you're about to miss your deadline and there isn't a thing you can do about it."

Wildly Subdued

• Midnight jam session. Practicing at the First Assembly of God Church, junior Ryan Cronk tunes up his guitar while senior Ricky Pickrell takes center stage to perform his vocal stylings. Helping out on his own guitar, junior Tracy Brown sits looking on, waiting patiently for his chance to start playing. They are part of the band League of Seven, which also includes their usual singer, junior Chris Corrao and drummer Mike Rauwolf. During performances, they often use black or colored lights and sometimes even smoke machines. The particular song they were practicing was "Open Your Eyes" by No Innocent Victim, a heavy metal song.

• Don't interrupt cookie time! Gleefully squeezing thick, gooey frosting from a tube, senior Elizabeth Kloxin gets ready to do some pretty major cookie decorating. She was preparing the tasty morsals for the National Honor Society inductions, and had quite a good time making each individual cookie look beautiful, presentable, and, most importantly, delicious.

• Just cruising down the highway! Enjoying a little break from her hectic schedule, junior Katy Parrott decides to go on a joy ride out North with her good friend, senior Annie Fisher. While driving down the brand new turnpike, they spot Katy's dream car and decide to pose for a few shots. It's all fun and games, until you get caught, so remember girls... It's always good to take breaks, but leaving in the middle of class could stir up some trouble!

• Let us pray. Joining hands in a solemn circle, Kayhi students stand together to pray early in the morning. Starting a few weeks before the event, people would say to their friends, "See you at the pole!" which became the catchphrase for the day.

• Look, I caught a big one! Reeling out a line to hook himself a fish, senior Matt Wolf has some fun fishing in the creek with his good friend Nick Aegeter, who smiles brightly while knee high in the cool water. Let's hope he doesn't get his hat wet.

• Come on baby, let's limbo! Getting the major Hawaiian spirit, freshman Stacey Stone and Junior Rayana White hold a limbo pole as freshman Mike Pavlik tries to go under without knocking off the pole. Seniors Annie Fisher, Leili Plasencia, sophomore Will Peterson, freshman Emily Miller junior Donald Alderman, freshmen Jill Steward Jonnae Ostrom and juniors Tennille Walker and Sam Elliott help cheer on the careful participant who, with slow persistence, is sure to make it under that bar.

• Let's get geometric! Having the some fun together, juniors Lindsay Hofstedt, Alice Cook, sophomore Lou Hu and freshman Megan Beardsley, gather together for youth group at the rec center. They were working on an activity to piece together some shapes.

If weekends were three days instead of two every week, what would you do with the extra day?

"I would sleep after recovering from my two days of vigorous studying."

-Senior Karen Elberson

"I would find the time to spend quality time with my family."

-Sophomore Nerissa Pettett

"Homework, probably, and party."

"I'd probably work."

-Junior Charlene Spurgeon

"Eat cup of noodles all day. Every flavor."

-Junior Caitlin O'Brien

"What I normally do. I'd go for a hike, and I'd do my homework, and I'd do things with my friends and watch movies."

-Junior Edelweiss Muench

"I would probably sleep in really late 'cause so far I wake up at seven o'clock every week 'cause I have stuff going on so I'd just hang out at home."

-Freshman Stacey Stone

"Sleep in 'cause I work on the weekends and probably walk my dog."

-Junior Laura Luther

"Blow it like I do the other two days."

-Freshman Claire Rowan

"Enjoy not being at school."

-Freshman Laura Parker

Breaking the fall: Some students find that sitting in a chair can be embarrassing. Freshman Jason Snook stopped his fall before causing further embarrassment.

Of human bondage: Freshman Emily Miller knows what happens to the first person to fall asleep at slumber parties. Next time she'll drink a little more coffee.

M. Leary

Have you ever been so embarrassed that you wanted to crawl into a hole and die? Some students at Kayh have. Whether it's toilet paper stuck to a shoe or something said in public that was idiotic, students have all had their moments. What about the time Aunt Ruth came to school to bring your lucky teddy to help with your big Algebra test? Of course, some incidents are more embarrassing than others, but no one's ever actually died from embarrassment (not yet, anyway). No matter how embarrassing, we will survive!

Attack of the four-eyed girl! Junior Lindsay Hofstedt tries on a pair of far-out spectacles. Maybe she thinks they will give her X-ray vision.

One day, while working at the drive-in window at McDonald's, it was a bit slow and I was just standing around talking. One car pulled up that I recognized as my friend's, so I grabbed a packet of ketchup and threw it at him to get his attention. He looked up and I was about to say "hi" when I noticed it wasn't who I thought it was! I was so embarrassed that I had to hide.

Zzzzz... High school can be very tiring. Junior Claire Hoffman takes a few minutes to catch her forty winks during Advanced Biology.

Senior pride: That's what is wrapped around freshman Mike Pavlik. What is school spirit to some seniors may prove to be a freshman's worst nightmare.

Historical Current Events

Ketchikan High School recognized twelve seniors as Top Seniors for the 1998-1999 school year. Those chosen were Leili Plasencia, Cara Wallace, Annie Fisher, Jacob Fama, Jeff Nuttall, Katie Poet, Ariana Dickinson, Melissa Cowan, Elizabeth Kloxin, Ariel Manabat, Erin Jakubek, and Jossy Leonora. Students were chosen using criteria such as how active they were in school and the community, and if they had any special talents in music or art, or had any special ability. Academics did not play a big part in selection, though they were considered. Students were also judged according to the content of their character, such as how polite and respectful they were, if they make good choices for themselves, and if they are respected by teachers and friends. Although some of the students chosen to be a Top Senior have been recognized by other awards, this program has been a way to recognize good students who are sometimes looked over.

In early 1999 KPC announced that the KPC prep building will be imploded as part of a youth organization fund raiser. The organizations that will be selling tickets and profiting from the event are the Ketchikan Special Olympics, The Ketchikan Chamber of Commerce Scholarship fund, and also the Kayhi baseball and softball teams are also involved. sophomore Chelsea Pfeifer and junior Jon Erickson are just two of many students selling the tickets. The winner of the raffle will push the detination button.

M. Leary

Watch for falling prices! Recently, Ketchikan was confronted with the possibility of economic growth. Wal-Mart one of the nation most successful super-stores wants to open a branch in our home town of Ketchikan. Many people were excited with the idea of being able to shop for a variety of merchandise at all American "low, low" prices. However to every positive side there is a negative side. There are many individuals, including the Ketchikan Downtown Business Association, that are very opposed to the idea of bringing in Wal-Mart. Many opposed say that Wal-Mart will drive business away from the locally owned and operated stores, and maybe even cause some to close down. Wal-Mart has done some rather extensive research on Ketchikan's economy and have come to the conclusion that Ketchikan's economy is strong enough to support the store. The plans show the store the measure 65,000 sq. ft., which is a rather small Wal-Mart. The building is to be built on North Tongass Highway. If all goes well the construction is to start spring of 1999.

M. Leary

King-size contest: Ray Troll, a local artist, painted a mural consisting of pictures of 67 "kings" and donated it to Kayhi. Along with the mural came a "Name that King" contest for a $2600 scholarship to the winner's choice of college. The contest was open to all Kayhi students from October to December 1998. The winner was the person who correctly named the most kings in the least amount of time. Not all of the kings were royalty, however. Some others depicted were Martin Luther King, Jr., Elvis Presley, king salmon, and a king-size bed. Donald Soderstrom, a junior, was the grand-prize winner with 52 correct answers, and senior Annie Fisher came in second with 50 correct answers.

Jeff Williams traveled to Anchorage as the rural community youth rep. for Alaska for World AIDS Day '98, which was December 1st. One of the many things presented at the main ceremony was the Alaska section of the Names Project AIDS Memorial Quilt. While Jeff was in Anchorage he was on several radio and TV shows, including Talk of Alaska where he was accompanied by Sue Medel one of the public nurses in charge of the group. This got the Teen Task Force quite the publicity. In early February the Task Force made the front page of the Ketchikan Daily News, and was also visited by the SHANTI rep. from Juneau, Matthew Turner. Turner told the group that SHANTI would be willing to fund some of the groups activities next year. Celebrity Cruises: In August 1998, the cruise ship, Crystal Harmony, brought a group of celebrities to Ketchikan. The passengers included Bill Gates, Robin Williams, Jeff Goldblum, Dan Aykroyd, Candace Bergen, Debbie Reynolds, Quincy Jones, Eric Idle, Penny Marshall, Alan Rickman, Clyde Drexler, Frances Ford Coppola, Carrie Fisher, Angela Bassett, and James Cameron. Friendly actor and comedian, Robin Williams (shown with junior Shannon Kloxin), spent most of his time with fans, signing autographs, and posing for pictures. # the satisfaction of a job well done

A volunteer is popularly regarded as someone who, without direct compensation, provides a service that benefits others. This definition is a complete contradiction of everything I've come to believe about volunteering. It is he who offers himself to help that is most rewarded. Working to improve the lives of others can create a good feeling inside. It also provides me with a satisfying sense of purpose and makes me feel as though my time is well spent. In the time that I have volunteered at KRBD community radio, I have learned a great deal about interaction with other people. My involvement with SBA has taught me the importance of cooperation and organization. I attribute significant growth and strengthening of my character to the time I've devoted to others.

Volunteering is an amazing thing. It not only brightens the day of the person being helped, but the helper feels that they've performed an important and meaningful task. I worked all summer at Downtown Drug Store. There were tons of annoying tourists that I had to deal with everyday but once in a while they would be nice. One time a tourist asked me if we accepted American money. They always were grouchy and treated us like we were lower than them, and we didn't know anything since we live in Alaska. The most fun experience I had while working downtown was when the cruise ship that had all of those celebrities on it was in Ketchikan. On my break it was very cool because I got to run over to the ship and I saw a lot of famous people. Overall, it was fun, even though I had to put up with a lot of rude people, and had to stay inside a store most of the summer, I had a good time and met a lot of cool people.

Many people don't think that bowling is a sport. I think it's just the opposite. Many kids from the age 3 to 18 find bowling to be an exciting and rather social sport. When it comes down to it, bowling takes a lot of practice and determination to succeed in. I have been bowling for about eight years, and over those eight years I have met many new and interesting friends. Some of my more interesting friends come from other cities involved with the sport, but I admit some do come from Ketchikan. I like traveling with our league, because we go to new places and meet many of Alaska's great youth bowlers. Over the last couple years, bowling has evolved in many ways. In the nation wide league the Coca-Cola College scholarship was introduced in conjunction with a place in the nationals, and for good old bowling fun there is the hot new wave "cosmic bowling," which the whole family can get into.

sport (noun). 1. An active pastime; diversion; recreation. 2. A specific diversion, usually involving physical exercise and having a set form and body of rules. For many students making the varsity or even junior varsity school team means the world to them. For other students it might be the sports outside of school that interests them such as bowling, ballet, drop in basketball and many more. As a third year photography student, I know how hard it is to take good pictures. Most people think it is just a push of the button and presto, the scene has been captured perfectly, but this is not true. The most trouble I've had as a photo student is focusing my camera. Of course my parents didn't buy me the camera that had automatic focus as an option on my brandnew camera, they bought me one that was manual all the way. My parents money was well spent on a semester's worth of B-'s because I couldn't figure out how to focus. Besides the fact that Mr. Hughes spent his time entertaining the class as he made fun of my blurry achievements. There have been a few pictures that have made three years in photo worthwhile and I was even proud to admit that the work was actually mine instead of shrinking back to my seat with embarrassment.

Have you ever heard the phrase, "A picture is worth a thousand words"? The yearbook photographers spend each year trying to take pictures that capture the pure essence of the moment, and make a spot for it in a book that will be a main source of reminiscing back to those high school days. Whether it's laughable, sad, embarrassing or informational, each picture is meant to bring the subject back to the moment the shutter clicked. One second frozen in time is meant to bring forth a flood of memories suspended in the past.

Academics Procrastinate Now!

• We've got a solution for all your chemistry problems. Entering the complex world of crystals and compounds is one of the many joys and pains of high school students. While performing a test on metal reactivity, sophomore Robert Garnick and junior Jack McDonald carefully drop solution into test-tubes, waiting in anticipation to see if the proper reactions will occur.

• The comfort zone. Propping his foot up on the table and resting up for the difficulties of class, freshman Jor-el Holmberg-Turner takes a well deserved break to rest while turning in his assignment. Pretty soon he'll be ready for the next one, and he'll work diligently until the bell rings.

• Practice makes perfect. Making use of the after school hours, seniors Jeff Nuttall and Destiny Dawson work on their chemistry homework, trying to understand the complex formulas and equations that fill an average chemistry class. It can be tough remembering how to balance equations and how big a mole is ( $6.28 \cdot 10^{23}$  or  $6.28 \cdot 10^{22}$ ?), but constant studying can make the difference between getting it and not.

• Seven hours a day pushed to eight. Listening to Mr. Kralis elaborate on the theories of the Egyptians and Sumarians during an Academic Decathlon meeting, freshmen Darcy Bengaard and Erika VanSlyke take the meaning of academics to new extremes. Even though they've just spent seven hours slaving away over assignments, tests, homeworks, and the basic stresses of everyday classes, these ambitious ladies are still willing to put an hour of their time into more studying and more academics. That's pretty impressive dedication!

• It's that time again! Searching the computer for information, senior Todd MacManus makes good use of his library to get started on his senior paper. Senior Joe Rambosek looks over his shoulder, while considering his own course of action for his paper. Seniors Matt Suitor, Jim Parrott, Liandra Danner, and Destiny Dawson work equally hard on their research, gathering as many sources as possible for their preliminary biography. Senior papers are the annual ulcer-causes for the seniors, who must research and write a 20-page paper in a month, to be turned in before Christmas break.

Resting his head on his homework, he closes his eyes dozes. The swimming season can really wipe a person out. Lets hope those early, early morning swims don't cause Erik too many problems.

What do you want to do when you grow up? Ah, the dreaded question. Jumping from small-town Kayhi to the work world is a scary transition. To help people get a hold on what they want to do in life, teachers at Kayhi have developed some great vocational classes. Students can study medical science, drafting, economics and just about everything else.

Economics students learn about the business world. Sophomore Dustin Moore said "It's an excellent class because you learn how to deal with real world issues, like the stock market." By selling Kayhi coffee mugs, economics students raked in some serious cash while learning valuable lessons.

Hard working senior Gordon Guthrie has taken four computer classes throughout his years at Kayhi. "I want to work with graphic design & computer networking," he said. In the future, the entire world will be run on computers. The skills Gordon develops may make him the next Bill Gates, so be nice to him.

Senior Jacob Austin finds drafting to be a necessity considering that he wants to become an architect. Maybe someday, people will live and work in creations designed by students like Jacob.

Productions and Technology is one of Kayhi's most awesome classes. P & T students do everything from composing music to recording their own tunes in Kayhi's state of the art studio. By learning the basics, Production Tech students get the know-how needed to work in the music and movie industries.

Vocational classes let students get a feel for various jobs and professions. With guidance of their teachers, many come out of class knowing what they want to do with their lives and how to make it happen. By producing the professionals of tomorrow, Kayhi is helping to build a better and brighter future.

Kayhi economics students work hard putting together the wonderful coffee mugs they'll be seeing. They are learning valuable lessons about the world of economics. Maybe someday they'll take over Wall Street!

Sophomore Art Hack works with his fellow classmates to successfully put up the house. It's a lot of work, but building something can produce a really wonderful feeling of accomplishment.

Juniors Aftan Lynch and Riannon Maynard sit together during Desktop Publishing, working hard at coming up with some cool designs on the computer. Computers can be really handy when it comes to enhancing a report.

Trying out those new songs he had thought of, senior Jim Moran stares blankly into the computer pondering the music of life while junior Travis Schenck wonders, Jim, genius or crazy man?

Get your pencil and paper out, because drawing is the favored genre among art students. Pottery and painting weren't too far behind, but sculpture just doesn't do it for these guys. Whether painting a landscape, sketching a portrait or chiseling stone, Kayhi students are always hard at work on future masterpieces.

"The hills are alive..." Senior Katie Poet, freshman Christine Montecillo & junior Anthony Martinez sing their hearts out alongside fellow actors in a rehearsal for "The Sound of Music," which packed the theatre nightly.

Hypnotized by the spinning wheel, junior Shannon Kloxin puts the finishing touches on her vase and smooths out cracks in the moist clay before baking it in the kiln.

Rollin' with the homies...sophomore Jenny Tittsworth rolls some clay in the slab while junior Katy Parrott and senior Brittany Hewitt wander about in search of artistic inspiration.

Painting the final details on her delicate mask, senior Destiny Dawson wraps up another stunning piece of work. One of Kayhi's best artists, Destiny plans to hone her skills at the Seattle Art Institute next year.

We be jammin'! Senior Brittany Hewitt flaunts her hand made Jamaican inspired mask. Can't you just hear that sweet reggae music in the air? Keep the spirit of the islands with you always, Brit.

Artistic Repression

Art is the conscious production or arrangement of sounds, colors, forms, movements, beauty; specifically, the production of the beautiful in a graphic or plastic medium. There are many forms of art, and Kayhi portrays them all. Junior Erin Guthrie says, "I think the art department needs more funding." The art students of Kayhi are allowed to put art in display cases, and may even choose to put them in shows to sell. Classes such as Indian Art explore not only the imagination, but the cultural differences in art. But art isn't all about exploring cultures, but also about exploring yourself and the world around you. Senior

Trevor Bedford twisted the lines, "I drew a portrait of myself, and one of a plant, in realism, then simplified them to abstraction." Trevor's work can be found in our very own library. Also found in our library are paper masks done by the sculpture and pottery classes, and other art work from Kayhi students. Sophomore Jennifer Gardner says, "I've learned a lot in Indian Art. I learned how to knot, weave, and draw using the correct coloring. An example is you don't ever use red on an eye." Art is interesting and educational, but some people are in it for the fun. Freshman Jeremy Brown finds it interesting and challenging to learn beading designs on such fabric designs as ravens. Freshman John Reigard made an incredibly cool mask from clay. He said, "It has a huge nose so we named it George. Don't worry, there's no significance." Another type of art, that is too often looked past in our high school, is that of photography. Senior Karen Elberson and senior Barbie Hull have some of their pictures posted on the walls near the business lab, along with other photographers. Junior photographer Steve Elliot said, "My best picture I have ever taken was a picture of the waves crashing on the rocks at the beach." Kayhi students express art with no oppression

Catching up on his much needed sleep, senior Jacob Fama rests during science class while the remaining class members partake in an experiment. At least he got his homework done for a different class and his mind is at ease.

Determined to finish his homework in class, senior Chris Demmert stays after the bell rings in order to do so. The extra effort during school hours means he doesn't have to spend his free time wasted on a measly homework assignment.

Working furiously to reach a deadline, seniors Patsy Major and Amber Erickson work hard on their notecards while senior Courtney Northrup concentrates researching her topic on the internet. It's worth all the stress in the end to get an A on the biggest paper of the year!

There's No Such Thing as GOOD Stress!

If a person were to ask an average high school student what they remember most about the school year, their reply would be, of course, stress. Staying up late to study for tests that teachers magically decide to give on the same day is hard; seven tests is a lot to cram for! Sophomore Jessica Nanez copes with stress by, "Letting it bottle up inside me until I burst and can't take it anymore! When I do relieve my stress I get relief by venting to my boyfriend about my problem or sometimes my friends." Whether you vent it or just chill, stress definitely needs to be relieved during the school year. Some resort to exercise to relieve tension. Keeping calm during a really difficult test is key to doing good on it. One important factor of stress is to get a lot of sleep. If a person stays up all night studying it's a sure-fire way to flunk a test. Visions of sleep will disrupt the concentration needed to complete those intense essays that a person never knows the complete answer to, but instead spends their time trying to maneuver their way through it.

Stress pops up during different times of the year for different grades. Freshmen tend to wack out on the first day of school and every day after that, sophomores spend it on easy street, juniors go crazy all year round, and seniors really stress out about their senior papers. Senior Tristan Robinson stated, "Stress is definitely more abundant right before Christmas break. There isn't anything that I can do to avoid it, I just be sure to get a lot of sleep and try to go with the flow of things."

Stress is a factor of life. Everyone goes through it, everyone has to participate in the whirl wind of activities that cause stress, but it's just a phase and everyone will survive. So next year, when a big test is coming up and you are so stressed out that you just sit there, take a few deep breaths and dig into those notes that you took during class and STUDY!

T. Curral

Stressing out during a science experiment, senior Ricki Pickrell takes a moment to pull up his goggles and pull some of his hair out. He's prepared to be a mad scientist when he grows up, he's already achieved the stress level!

After showing up late for school after a late night spent on school work, senior Matt Wolf rushes to class before the ten minute rule sets in. He'd better watch those tardies or else he'll end up spending a fun-filled day in in-house with Mr. Wilburn!

Struggling to come up with the perfect words to convey her point, senior Kathie Osburn puts her hands to her head in the hope that maybe she can squeeze her thoughts out. Writing can be hard when the right phrase is right on the tip of the tongue, but it won't come out.

Clutching her head with both hands, senior Nicole Pavlik stresses about her plans for the weekend. She's not sure if she's going to spend her time on homework or having fun and relaxing with her friends after a hard week at school. Decisions, decisions!

How many presentations will you have to do?

Who would've guessed? Class presentations are one of the most feared assignments in school for many students. When the dreaded day rolls around, classes are often emptied by a strange student flu. While the cause of this disease is unknown, we suspect that it might have something to do with unread books and incomplete homework assignments. If you're worried about your presentation, you're not alone! Just take a look at the graph and you can prepare for all the presentations you'll have to do in the coming years.

T. Curran

Doing a presentation for his Maritime class, sophomore Matthew Wilsie shows off his vast knowledge of boats. Because of his presentation, his classmates had the chance to learn about the importance of watercraft safety.

On a field trip for Maritime, junior Jonathan Nunez admires the form and structure of Dixie. The sunny day allowed for the trip to be a success and a lot was learned in one afternoon.

Boo! Although often a lot of work, field trips are meant to be enjoyed! Popping out of a tunnel, freshman Christina Kralis knows what it is to have fun. Hope she remembers to watch out for her hair!

T. Curran

What...? Freshman Nick Buchanan is perplexed as he attempts to decipher what type of anchor adorns the boat docked in front of him. Hmm ... Maybe he'll pay more attention next time in class.

Do men really stop and ask for directions? Senior Sean Conley proves to freshman Megan Young that it can happen. Checking out the map at the Plaza Port West, they find out their destination.

K. Poet

Having fun, girls? Freshmen Laura Parker and Nicole Hack rediscover the joys of childhood as they take a quick break in the play area during a speech and drama field trip.

B. Hewitt

I wonder what that's there for? Freshman Tell Tombaugh carefully studies a Danforth boat anchor as he wanders the docks recording information during an excursion to Bar Harbor for a Maritime field trip.

From Diversions to Excursions

I can get a little tiring to hear teachers lecture seven or so hours, day after day, week after week. Once in a while, we get the chance to see one of our peers express their thoughts on a subject with a class presentation. Sometimes we even get to leave the classroom and experience our surroundings hands-on.

Unfortunately, class presentations can be a painful and embarrassing encounter. Especially if a student gets stuck with two in one day! "One day I had a presentation to give for two classes. I was chosen to go first during my first hour, and I was in front of the class and started doing the wrong presentation! Luckily

I caught myself before getting very far," stated freshman Christina Kralis. Being prepared is as important as eating a healthy breakfast. Most students don't have a problem with getting up in front of their peers as long as they've prepared themselves. Junior Seth Walton proves, "Classroom presentations don't really bother me because I am usually prepared for them." The embarrassment factor is a definite gut wrencher for some kids that have problems with public speaking. Sophomore Travis Johnson said, "I get embarrassed because it's my nature." Whether it's your nature or the cute girl sitting in the front row, presentations are a situation to groan about!

Field trips are an exciting excuse to get out of class and get hands-on experience that you can't get sitting in a stuffy classroom. According to junior Jonathan Nunez, "I like field trips because they give me a chance to see what I learned about in action."

Most students enjoy field trips because it's a chance to exit the building, if only for a little while. Taking a break from the monotony of academic life, students join certain classes just for a few field trips. Junior Tom Byron likes field trips because "you are allowed to get out of class."

No worries. Lounging around during class, seniors Ariel Manabat, Amanda Stidd, Troy Narvaez, freshman Kimble Mitchell, and senior Courtney Northrup hang while senior Kristie Williams takes a nap.

Getting ready for the long day ahead, Miss Karlik's class takes a minute for a creative little exercise while senior Kathleen Moore, Aleyne Short and Sean Seaver look on from the sidelines.

Focused on the Distraction

Class distractions are all around, throwing us all off task. But does the distraction control you or do you control it? Distraction is a perfectly natural thing that everyone experiences once in a while. Each distraction is different, there are the good ones and the bad ones. One of the best distractions: "Brittany Hewitt and I went and got Abel Piercy out of class, found some music and had him sing happy birthday to Jesse Curran while doing a striptease. It was so popular we brought it around to a couple of other classes," said senior Katie Poet. Another good distraction is "Kathie Osburn's machine gun sneezes!"

said sophomore Claire Rowan. So many distractions are brought on by one's free will. "Thinking is a big distraction. I mean I can be doing my homework, I mean I can be thinking about doing my homework, or maybe actually doing some of it, which is really distracting and thinking that I'll never get it done so I think about, well pretty much anything more enjoyable than doing my homework." said senior Kathleen Moore. Thinking: is it good or does it just throw you off task? So in fact school is a distraction because it makes students think? If you want to be distracted than you definitely will be. The worst distractions "Probably other homework that prevents you from finishing other things," said senior Destiny Dawson, and "When Abel was doing a striptease in our class," Junior Travis Schenck remembered. That's very understandable, since things can be traumatizing.

So even though class work and homework should come before friends and fun stuff, it just never seems to work out that way. The best distractions are the ones that happen, instead of the ones you think of. It's the difference between talking to a friend and talking to yourself.

It's so far away. Junior Claire Hoffman is trying to see the board, but perhaps the great vision of those binoculars is distracting her. Oblivious to her neighbor's strange equipment, junior Therese Beaver works away.

Hey buddy, watch out for that aggression. Releasing stress from a tough week, senior Jim Parrott attacks Mr. Bjur's squeeze doll. Toys can be the best distraction during any class that lags.

T. Day

Do you understand, boy? Getting overly ferocious with her students, Ms. Patton jumps up to teach senior Chris Giles the right approach to Spanish as senior Amanda Stidd looks on from the side.

Pick a card, any card. Cutting the deck and making a deal, junior Margaret Roth plays a little solitaire during class. With the way most lectures go, it's hard not to get distracted by a pack of 52.

R. White

So many distractions, so little time. You can never remember exactly how many times in a single day you get distracted, and if you did try to count you'd probably get distracted and stop. No matter what throws you off a task at hand remember that it was most likely the fault of one of these things: A) television, B) friends, C) the phone, D) music or it could be E) all the above.

Studying Hard or Hardly Studying?

Studying is a skill that most people have to learn well in order to excel at school. Some people like to take tests without studying, thinking that they will get good grades. Unfortunately, this method rarely works. When studying, you should be in a comfortable environment without distractions. Junior Jeff Williams said, "I like to study alone in a dimly lit room with music and an occasional interruption to break the major brain strain."

Food is a big help when it comes to making the brain work. Energy is always needed to get all the information registered.

Junior Jodi Williams states, "I like to drink Mountain Dew, Jolt, Surge, hot chocolate, and eat chips, fettucini, and salad to help me study!" Having plenty of caffeine and starches definitely helps maintain students' energy, just be careful of how much is taken.

Being around people while studying is a good way to make learning fun. Senior Laura Lapinski says, "Sometimes I like to study by myself, but sometimes when I don't understand the stuff, I like to have people around to help me. Smart people like Jacob Fama."

When you have a big test or exam you should spend all week studying for it.

Some people have different methods. Senior Katie Poet said, "I always study five minutes before a test. Whenever I spend mega time studying it stresses me out and I do worse on the test because I think, 'Oh, I know that one!' and spend twenty minutes trying to remember the right answer."

Whenever you get stuck on your work there is always someone around that can help you. Senior Mike Brandt said, "When I don't understand my work, the person I go to for help is my brother because he is very smart, and we're very close, he knows how to explain it so I understand."

Unsatisfied with his current grades for the quarter, junior Tom Byron works out his differences of opinion with Mrs. Hunt by challenging her to face him in mortal combat.

Having a little trouble in her trigonometry class, senior Kristen Coffin is getting some help from her teacher, Mrs. Tillotson, who tries to explain to her how to properly graph the function she's looking at.

What chemicals shall we create today? Mr. Dwyer and junior Steven Beedle join forces for a devious plan to conquer the school with a chemical creation that will make the school putty in their hands.

Teaching Students, Student Teaching

A fine line lies between the teacher to student relationship. The teachers are to teach and the students are to learn. What a concept! It's a give and take relationship in which both parties get something back. The need to like and respect one another is a big part of what makes a good student-teacher relationship. Here are some of the thoughts of teachers about the most gratifying part of their job, (names will not be given.) "Seeing the student's face light up the moment they understand something," also "when we make a connection with the students," "watching students take off on a topic or assignment because they want too."

Students also have their own opinions on what makes a good teacher-student relationship. Senior Dawn Jahnke said, "When the teacher understands the students and gives them the time they need one-on-one instead of just giving them the time in class is what makes the relationship successful." Senior Destiny Dawson said, "When teachers and students show each other respect is what makes them get along. Without that, it's impossible to develop a relationship."

Some students get along great with thier teachers, while others have a problem getting along with them. Junior Marie Zellmer said, "I get along with all of my teachers but I don't make myself a nuisance so it kind of prevents them from not getting along with me."

Overall, the students and teachers at Kayhi get along good, and if they don't then they just learn to deal with it. Luckily, most of them have very good relationships.

Getting some help from Mr. Bolling, senior Gabe Falzarano tries figure out how to work his camera, as freshman Chris Eubanks waits in line with a smirk on his face, hoping Mr. Bolling can help him too.

Mr. Crockett stands chatting with seniors Ariana Dickinson and Melissa Cowan. They discuss the importance of Mr. Crockett's legendary bathroom passes and tell each other the past experiences they have had with them.

Motherly advice: Being in National Honor Society requires its senior members to host the college fair, but senior Erin Barnes finds time to get with her mother and check out some of the great college booths in the gym.

No wasting time when you might save a dime. After checking in with seniors Ari Dickinson, and Cara Wallace, senior Erin Jakubek goes straight for colleges with plenty of scholarship opportunities.

Get your information! Many students find time at the college fair to ask questions burning in the back of their mind. Senior Melanie Crevier listens to answers, while senior Melanie Marshall goes for the goodies.

Day dreaming about the future! During the college fair seniors Abel Piercy, Eric Brandt, Hyrum Neilson, and Matt Ohmer begin to think about furthering their education and dealing with life outside of Kayhi.

I want to know more! Most colleges offer further information through the mail. Senior Eric Brooks fills out an info card at one of the many attending colleges, while senior Mike Hilton looks on.

Look at that! Some students at Kayhi find guidance from their friends when it comes to choosing the right school. Senior Liandra Danner reads a booklet while senior Gladys Jossil points out something she sees in the distance.

Interesting! The college fair is not just a bunch of tables and info cards. Senior Christy John found an interesting object and looks into it hoping that it will help her pick the college that is meant for her.

Listen up! To many, the college fair is a time to get information on interesting colleges. Senior Matt Suiter soaks in some information while seniors Chris Giles and Gordon Guthrie fill out college info cards.

To Infinity and Beyond

Journeying into the unknown! The college fair is an annual event for Kayhi. This year was a little different. The college fair, which was normally held in the commons and library, was held in the gym. Loads of students poured into the gym hoping to get some helpful information. Some students have high standards in colleges. "I'm looking for a college that fits all my education needs. The type of people and the location of the college are very important. I also look for the teaching styles and class sizes, because I don't want to spend thousands of dollars on schooling and get ignored," said senior Patsy Major. Others might have different standards. "I'm just looking for a college to get the education, to pay the bills," said senior Eric Brooks. "The location and the people I hang with are important," said senior Mike Hilton. Other students attend the fair to compare their choice college to other colleges. "I'm only here to compare colleges because I was already accepted to the University of Northern Colorado, which is the highest ranked school for elementary education in the nation," said senior Melissa Cowan. To most students this year's college fair was really helpful. "The college fair has been really helpful. I'm planning on majoring in Business Administration. There are a few colleges that I'm interested in, and their being here is an awesome opportunity to get first-hand information on the major I'm pursuing," said senior Jeff Nuttall. Many students were overwhelmed by all the goodies the colleges were giving out. "I thought the college fair was cool because the colleges were giving out a lot of stickers," said senior Awndrea Manning. Senior Misty Hudson said, "The college fair is a great opportunity to find the right college, and there's a lot of free stuff here, too!" "It's been cool. I had lots of fun!" said senior Cassie Hebel.

YOU WILL BE MY FRIEND AND YOU WILL LIKE IT!!! And even if you don't, I still will always feel at liberty to laugh at you... even when you hurt your knee. Okay, once I heard this story about these four girls who were, like, friends and, dude, they were so cool. You don't even know. Man, when they laughed I just wanted to tell them to shut up! I never could understand all that stuff they talked about and everything they laughed at. They were so weird. I say, if it was my choice, they should all go back to the planet they came from. But in retrospect, I guess they really had a lot of fun. Even if they were nerds and all. 'Cause you know that Cara girl is so loud and obnoxious. And, Annie, I think she stopped taking her medication. Oh yeah, and Elizabeth, she is just way too happy to be anyone's friend. Then there's Kirsten... don't even go there! One last word: the tall shall perish and the short shall rule the world! Annie 3:16 Okay, see you in biology. CGC for ever! Lia-beth. You guys are the coolest. We'll be friends always and forever. Smile, God Loves You! Cara Vera: You guys have always been and always will be the bestest. "Shine for the glory of the Lord" Aurelia: Remember Jesus because he'll never forget you! (When I'm rich and famous, I'll try to remember you too.) Kirtu: You guys are the marshmallows in my lucky charms! How wonderful to have friends who love God and stand by him. Never Bumble with the bee...

SEE YOU AT THE RAPTURE! JUBILEE!

People Finder: Structured Randomness

• Drinking from the fountain of youth freshman Adrian Barrett ponders life's mysteries and smiles when reminded of the simple pleasures in life, including H<sub>2</sub>O.

• Knowledge is power! And the library is a great way to gain that knowledge. Sophomore Michelle Trumble is exercising her right to read what the free presses have written. While junior Nicole Utke supports her by letting her borrow the book and offering her an encouraging smile.

• 1-800-CALL-ATT. Both answering a page from their sweeties, junior Jason Carey and freshman James North take advantage of the private phone lines in the English office. What the teachers don't know, won't hurt them.

• Seniors will always dominate life at Kayhi. Showing off his senior power and pride, senior Robert Moriarty traps small and pestulant underclassman Brett Mackie and sits to revel in his wit, power, and cunningness.

• Hey, baby! What'chya up to Friday night? Senior Drinnan Thornton, while proposing a fun evening of movies and dancing, is blinded by the beauty of classmate and new found date buddy Laura Martin.

• As if the snow didn't affect them, freshmen Honey Lee Phillips and Chani King leave the school without a worry (and a coat). The girls' conversation includes boys, school, and more boys. Looks as if they're ready to have a seriously fun evening.

"In New York, I saw many scary people missing limbs, but I'm sure they're good at heart."

-Senior Hallie Engel
Light travels at the speed of um.... light! Have you ever been in class and your mind just went blank? Yeah, we all have been in that situation. Junior Jeff Williams had that happen to him once or maybe more than once... "I like wallet chains."

"Random drug testing at the high school is a farce."

-Senior Pete Arntzen
As a tribute to American Government and the individual's rights to do what pleases them (especially when they wish to eat a peanut butter jelly sandwich in class): "Sometimes I think you have to march right in and demand your rights, even if you don't know what your rights are or who the person you're talking to is, then, on the way out, slam the door."

-Senior Awndrea Manning
Sometimes people get the idea that the students are the psychos here at Kayhi. They seem to forget this: "I like cows when I see 'em in the road in the Midwest and the fact that they make milk for my children."

-Respected faculty and favorite Mr. Ortiz
Medulla oblongata: part of the brain just above the spinal cord; controls breathing, heartbeat, and the size of blood vessels; nerve fibers cross over here. "My mama says that the reason alligators is so ornery is 'cause they got all them teeth and no toothbrush."

-Bobby Bouché
Young and addicted youth often find reasons to justify what they do by stating they were provided their goods by higher powers. "Caffeine is a gift directly from God."

-Senior Mike Long
When the days look bleak or when you have no more reason to complain always heed this jubilant and peachy advice. "At the end of the road there is always a rainbow shining down."

-Senior Julie Painter

Colophon: The 1999 Williwaw, "Organized Chaos," had a press run of 550 copies, and 192 pages were printed in a 9x12 trim size, 80 lbs. (the approximate weight of large honeydew melon). The book contains 32 pages of color and 8 pages of spot color. All printing and binding was done by Jostens Publishing Company. Roy Sisler and Laurie Hall were the Josten's representatives. Cover design concept was created by Jesse "The Shoe" Curran, Kirsten "The Rapid Fix" Mix, Cara "The Scissors" Wallace, Annie "The Stapler" Fisher, and Becky "The Comet" Leo, and the artwork was done by the Jostens Art Consultants. Our final cover consists of multicolored spirals on a black background. The book was finished on time, and it was submitted on the 25th of February and distributed in early May. The book was sold for $35.00 the first week, $40.00 mid-year, and $45.00 for the remainder of the year.

This was the first year for yearbook adviser Mrs. Becky Leo. The Editor-in-Chief was Jesse Curran. The Associate Editors were Drinnan "The Index" Thornton and Annie Fisher. The Copy Editor was Cara Wallace. The Photo Editor was Kirsten Mix, and the Business Manager was Sara "The Ad" Weston. The Williwaw staff totaled 19 students. Copy, photography, and designs were done by students. The principal was Mr. Anthony Kennedy and Vice-Principal was Mr. Don Pennington.

We would like to say thanks to everyone who helped make this yearbook possible. A special thanks goes out to the entire yearbook staff for their hard work and dedication in producing the best yearbook of century (Any complaints can be directed to someone else). We would also like to thank the teachers, local businesses, Troy Narvaez, and Hall Anderson.

Congratulations...

The Years Ahead:

As time has passed, As we have grown and changed, the world we once knew has evolved as well, and the part we know now will be different from those in twenty years.
And while we each look with compassion to one another, we will change our world into one that we will love to live in, a place that greets every human being with respect, and a place where being different is okay.
We will change our world with every word we speak and action we make, and a life of happiness and peace will be our reward. In a chaotic universe, we shall calm the chaos, bringing organization to a hectic world.

Senior Matt Suiter watches principal Anthony Kennedy and vice-principal Don Pennington prepare sophomore Elisa Bolling for ritual sacrifice. Remember, students: don't mess with the faculty.

Freshmen Rachel Bowman and Zach Boles, sophomores Dolly Enright, Beth Schafer, Elizabeth Hiscox, hi mom Jody Fletcher, Jennifer Lystad, Angelina Martin, and John Fain, and juniors Kristen Chambers, Devin Hopson, Nathan Hatfield-Evans, Brian Vagts, Diana Veltkamp, and Jared Campbell circle the square.

At freshman Deana Hallmann's personal request, sophomore Richard Harney dons his favorite grass skirt and hula-hoop and shakes his groove thing all over school.

While at Winter Ball, senior Brittany Hewitt and junior Joel Cuplin point and stare at those who are unsuccessfully trying to bust a move. Says Hewitt, "Not everyone has soul." Harsh!

Sophomores Gini Trimble, Michelle Trumble, Natalie Ney and Meghan Young stop cheer-leading while they pick off members of the opposing team. That's what Juneau gets for messing with our wrestlers! Point and shoot, ladies.

Let's Break a Leg

The Tempest & Music Fest

Ketchikan High School has been known for its totally awesome drama productions. This year Kayhi drama students performed "The Tempest". "Being in production Tech. helps me to see a production such as the "Tempest" from both the technical and acting side."
- Jacob Martin, sophomore

Sometimes you have to step out of your comfort zone when you're part of a performance group. "I am in symphonic band and play the alto sax. I had a big solo in one of the songs we played so I was nervous, but it was fun anyway."
- Keith Davis, junior

"Music Fest was a great way to learn what you need to improve on and meet lots of people. We had to go to different clinics. One guy taught us how to make good vocal production. It helped us all learn how to sing better as a group."
- Christina Kralis, freshman

The starring roles in a play aren't always the most important ones. The live scenery in The Tempest definitely played a big part. "I was the lizard and I got to crawl around the stage and stick my tongue out at the audience. It was awesome!"
- Holly Temple, sophomore

On with the show! Senior Drinnan Thornton pauses to give the audience a dashing smile while the two lovebirds, freshman Erika VanSlyke and senior Josh Wilson perfect their "forlorn lover" look. In another scene, the curtain is about to close on another great performance by Kayhi's own symphonic band. Meanwhile, The Tempest continues as junior Travis Schenck and freshman Stephanie Woodruff bumble around the stage providing some comic relief, while the delicate spirits hide behind live flowers and plants. The concert choir sings on to deliver yet another superior performance at the Southeast Alaska Music Fest of 1999.

K. Mix

Warming up for a big performance, Mr. Bjur demands full attention from his students. Freshman Jamilah Pitchford, sophomore Elizabeth Anglin, senior Erin Jakubek, and junior Alice Cook go over their music. It can be tiring to rehearse over and over, but definitely pays off!

Talk about a bad hair day! Freshman Darcy Bengaard grimaces after the hair and makeup crew gets done with her. Great costuming and elaborate makeup make it easy for a skilled actress like Darcy to get into the part of her character and impress the audience.

Where the wild things are! Senior Abel Piercy slithers around the stage while his co-stars, sophomores Angelina Martin and Brittany Hassel, and senior Katie Poet, gaze ahead during a pivotal scene. We can only imagine the audience gasping in horror.

Concert choir: seniors Ange Jones, Katherine Osburn, Shannon Hallman, Jeff Nuttall, Drinnan Thornton, Chris Giles, Charlie Cloudy, Hyrum Neilson, Abel Piercy, Ruel DeLeon, Leili Plasencia, juniors Caitlin O'Brien, Lindsay Hofstedt, Mike Rauwolf, Chris Corrao, Janse Thomas, Becca Neilson, Molly Berntson, and sophomores Aleisha Filyaw, Lindsay Barnes, and Alisa Gubatayao.

Pitching the winning strike, junior Donald Munhoven shows off his great pitching skills. With the help of his great coach Scott Milner he gets better and better and improves his skills

Up at bat and waiting for a perfect pitch, freshman Braden Sharp gets ready to hit the ball out of the field. The Kayhi team knows how important offense is when it comes to winning the game.

Throwing the ball back to the pitcher, sophomore Brandon Nicholas raises his arm over his head while the ump waits for the game to continue. Being a catcher definitely keeps one on his toes (and knees!)

Sports are a pretty important part of high school life and mean a lot to the people who choose to participate in them. There are many different sides of sports which make them a really awesome thing to be part of. "I enjoyed being on the Kayhi Kings baseball team."

-Matt Wolf, senior

"I remember my sophomore year I was playing in varsity. A Juneau girl was up to bat and hit the ball right up the line. I had to run to get over to it and the next thing I know I'm flat on my face and everyone is crowding around me..."

-Karen Elbersen, senior

"Kayhi Baseball was fun because all the guys on the team got along with each other, which made the team trips really fun. Also when we tied for first with Juneau, that really made the baseball season complete."

-Richard McAlpin, sophomore

"Traveling is a major part of any Kayhi sport. Some sports travel more than others. Kayhi's baseball and softball tend to travel a lot. This does not bother the student's much. Actually many students look forward to those long awaited spring trips. "I liked traveling to Juneau." -Samantha Bass, junior

Senior Melissa Orin is ready for the round up while senior Barbie Hull poses with coach Joe Austin. Freshman Jonnae Ostrom, seniors Jennifer Gilson and Karen Elbersen, freshmen Zeta Moss and Savannah Stewart, sophomore Tesia Dobrydnia, and freshman Angela Campbell wait to bat. Having a little fun with face cream, freshmen Angela Campbell, Zeta Moss, Jodi Jakubek, and Jonnae Ostrom make a silly pose while seniors Amber Erickson and Erin Barnes and Sharli Hayter hang out in the dugout. Team members Nicole Pavlik, Jodi Jakubek, Angela Campbell, Kalee Bolshakoff, Melissa Orin, Aleisha Filyaw, Savannah Stewart, Jonnae Ostrom, Jennifer Gilson, Melissa Leary, Karen Elbersen, Beth Sarvela, Zeta Moss, Barbie Hull, and Tesia Dobrydnia, with coaches Jim Sarvela and Dave Filyaw.

Alaskans for Drug-Free Youth represents exactly what its name says: tons of students, who happen to be Alaskan, unifying together all for the sake of being drug-free and proud. Although proud, junior Aaron Tweat shows that he has a wild and crazy side. Is that chocolate syrup? Being drug free doesn't necessarily mean that you have characteristics of a normal and sane person, as freshman Cheryl Romero, sophomore Jessica Kenyon, juniors Lindsay Hofstede, Tennille Walker, Heidi Weimer, and senior Erin Jakubek clearly show. Some ADFY participants aren't as weird as others though. Seniors Hanna Brinkmann, Elizabeth Klotin, and Jim Parrott are sweeter than the sweetest while waiting for the ADFY action to begin. But no matter what, if you're drug-free you are always cool. Strutting their stuff are sophomores Brandon Nicholas, Mike Thompson, Micheal Toole, senior Hyrum Neilson, and freshman Seth Marrs.

Getting A Clue

Alaskans for Drug-Free Youth Conference 1999

"It was awesome. Nowhere else are you given the chance to dress as a purple gorilla in a skit and still be thought of as a cool dude. I also loved the group activities, they were really fun because of the crazy games we played and the one on one talks. I had a great time hanging out with old friends, but the icing on the cake was hanging out with kids from other towns who are also drug free and proud."

-Jim Parrott, senior-

"When I first joined ADFY I thought I was going to hate it. I mean, where's the fun in hanging out at the school all weekend without any drugs? No, but really, it was awesome. I got four hours of sleep and it was the time of my life. Drug-free people equals cool."

-Kirsten Mix, senior-

After spending an entire weekend staying up past hours and using a lifetime's supply of energy, some students seemed as if they had lost their sanity. "Sweet. ADFY's cool. Save the forest." Obviously, this Norwegian had a crazy weekend.

-Sander Michelet, senior-

"Like everyone else, I think the best part was family groups. They give you a chance to know people better because you're continually interacting with them. I am really glad I was a participating staff member this year. Last year they didn't have a conference, so this year it was especially important. It's always good to reach out to people and increase drug awareness."

-Janae Thomas, sophomore-

"I feel pretty, oh so pretty..." All made up with nowhere to go, juniors Joel Cuplin and Jesse Van Art spend a little girl time with freshman Kristen Kuehl and Cheryl Romero during a skit at the ADFY conference.

Sugar and spice and everything gross... Senior Amanda Stidd and sophomore Ahna Gillet, covered in icky goo, laugh it up at the ADFY conference after a wild and crazy round of Double Dare.

Sending out their message, seniors Elizabeth Kloxin and Kirsten Mix perform a skit during the ADFY conference. They were playing football players, and Kirsten had gotten HIV from sharing a steroids needle.

Redefining the word "model," a bulletin board featuring the youth staff members and role models of the ADFY conferences highlights the hard workers and introduces them to new-comers and veterans of the annual conference.

Stay away from the demon rum! Junior Shannon Kloxin and seniors Amanda Stidd, Annie Fisher, Charissa Nichols & Hyrum Neilson role play alcoholics in a skit to teach others to stay sober and avoid the pitfalls of hitting the bottle.

Courtesy of Ketchikan Public Library and Ketchikan Museums

Run, Jeff, Run! Leaping over hurdles and making his way to the finish line, sophomore Jeff Nordlund soars into the lead while his slow opponents lag behind like snails, barely inching along.

Hands outstretched and feet pushing ahead, senior Melanie Crevier flies through the air with the greatest of ease while competing in the long jump, stirring up a blinding dust cloud to confuse the competition.

With the strength and agility of an awesome Olympiad, senior Charissa Nicholas prepares to launch a heavy shotput ball into orbit as she warms up her killer muscles.

Track & Field is one sport that tests the physical and mental limits of each individual member. When members push the limits they are thrust into victory. A victorious long jumper, sophomore Kelly Nausid finds all her hard work paying off. Running is a competitive sport, each runner fights to win the battle of physical limit versus personal will. One of many runners, sophomore Holly Thompson presses on to reach the prize. Being a member of Track & Field requires teamwork. Freshman Dustin Wilson and junior Keith Davis model the popular saying, "There is no I in team." No matter what event an individual participates in he/she always tries his/her best. Junior Tom Byron skillfully jumps over the bar during his high jump competition.

Chariots Of Fire

Kayhi Track & Field Team 1999

"One day I was trying to show off for all the girls in my personal fitness class while getting in some practice for track. I decided to practice hurdles in the tennis court. My attempt with suaveness ended when my foot got caught on the tennis net and I landed face first. My advice, never get brave for the ladies unless you're prepared for massive embarrassment."

-Todd Macmanus, senior-

"I compete in four track events: triple, long, four by one, and four by two. In Juneau I placed second in the triple and third in the long. In Sitka I placed first in the long. Southeast is coming up and I am pumped."

-Laura Lapinski, senior-

"Track is fun, state is the best. After a race it feels really great to break the tape because you know how much work you've put into it. And when you break your personal record, there's a real sense of accomplishment. Summing up the experiences you have during the track season is really hard, there are so many memories you take away with you."

-Jared Cockrum, senior-

"I run the 800, that's the best. I got second place and almost got first. I also have participated in the 400, and 800 relays. We, our team, practice one to two hours a day. Every other day we do a hard workout, and it's hard. I think the funniest thing was when Holly, Ahna, Nicole, and I stole our friend's stuffed animal and held it hostage for two days."

-Elisa Bolling, freshman-

Drenched and Dry

Senior Skip and Senior Tea

"It was so awesome! Wish we could skip everyday. I threw lots of people in the lake. It was too much fun. We made Mrs. Bloom and Mr. Crockett hold hands before we dunked them."

-Hyrum Neilson, senior

"Skip day was cool. Hoping not to get wet I hid out for over an hour in cars, and in the woods before turning myself in to prevent being pulled off the bus and tossed in at the last minute."

-Hallie Engel, senior

"It was all good. It was one of the last times we could be together as a class, like one BIG family! When I left, I shed a tear in my left eye. Boo-hoo. But hey I figure that we leave all this behind to move on in life. So, again, it's all good."

-Randy Yates, senior

"I nearly missed Senior Tea but made it just in time to visit with my classmates while drinking tea and eating cookies. I really did miss Senior Skip and that was heart wrenching. My spirit was with my class though; in my heart I was drenched and wet."

-Cara Wallace, senior

Courtesy of Ketchikan Public Library and Ketchikan Museum

Seniors, unite! Hanging out at senior tea, seniors Dan Brown and Brittany Hewitt listen to the beautiful piano music of junior Caitlin O'Brien and sophomore David Rockwood. Seniors Allison Gelbrich, Becca Diverty, Courtney Northrup, and Amber Erickson cuddle together after being dunked in the water while Hyrum Neilson and Abel Piercy laugh about their victory over the very wet Tristan Robinson and Erin Jakubek. Meanwhile, seniors Todd MacManus, Ariel Manabat, and Ruel DeLeon join together, taking a break from their busy day of throwing as many seniors as they can into the water. Senior picnic and tea are great opportunities for everybody to hang out, both wet and dry.

Ready to dunk Mrs. Bloom and Mr. Crockett, seniors Eric Brandt, Abel Piercy, Hyrum Neilson, Mike Long, Matt Wolf, Micah Henrick, Karl Bruening, Shaun Haseltine, and Ruel DeLeon stand in the cold water of Ward Lake.

Lounging around outside the barbecue, senior Jim Parrott rests for a while and watches the antics of his friends as they head for the water. Despite his dry appearance, Jim definitely got dunked into the water later that day.

Enjoying a little quiet time, senior Jennifer Gilson chats with junior Tennille Walker, who was helping put on senior tea. In the back, seniors Troy Narvaez, Sean Conley, Todd MacManus, and Ariel Manabat talk.

Seniors Hyrum Neilson, Randy Yates, and Mike Long stand with Kirsten Mix and Amanda Stidd, who were finally thrown in the water. Even though the two girls hid for an hour and a half, they still got dunked.

Matching in classic black and white, juniors Molly Berntson, Melissa Leary, and Becca Neilson pour punch while junior Joel Cuplin waits in the back to see if he can help.

What the teachers don't know won't hurt them. Taking a break from class and work are junior Micheal Lyshol, seniors Micah Henrick, Chris Giles, Justin Dennis, and Dana Shoup. Rule numero uno of fun: always have fun by rebelling and while you're at it, drive like a maniac.

Thank goodness there isn't any drool. Senior Jennifer Gilson sleeps as if she has never slept before while sophomore Aleisha Filyaw snoozes like a princess. Rule numero dos of fun: always take a nap at the end of a long, hard day so you can party the night away later.

Girl Power! Seniors Charisa Nicholas, Cara Wallace, Kirsten Mix, Elizabeth Kloxin, Annie Fisher, and junior Katy Parrott show they have what it takes to become the next Spice Girls. Rule numero tres: big hair will be a yes for life.

Scared of what is about to happen are sophomore Katie Sportsman, juniors Melissa Leary, Katherine Short, and freshman Christine Montecillo. Rule numero quatre: if you get too scared, remember the bathroom is only a few minutes away.

Red, white, and blue. Proud to be an American and showing her pride by installing a flag in her classroo is junior Chelsey Pfeifer. Rule numero cinco: sing your national anthem once a week and say the pledge of allegiance at least once a day.

Wild and Crazy Kids of Kayhi

Courtesy of Ketchikan Public Library and Ketchikan Museums

When no one is looking some people do the most amazing, strange, and awe inspiring things. Senior Allison Gelbrich takes time to steal away for a good laugh and smile after being thrown in the water. But what were seniors Dan Brown and Elizabeth Kloxin thinking when they decided to dig for gold during a photo shoot? Caught once in a compromising situation, the two will never again make the same mistake. Strong, mighty, and powerful is senior Becca Diverty. With her mean sunglasses and torn jeans, she can overcome the toughest of obstacles. Her might is greater than one hundred gazillion men; women will always be better. Rule numero seis: whatever you do, whoever you are, always have fun, and never think twice about who's watching.

Fun, fun, and a little more fun. Taking a break from their strenuous work at Senior Tea are junior hosts Steven Beedle, Joel Cuplin, Chris Corrao, and Jon Erickson. No matter what situation these boys are in, it seems they manage to have fun. Debate is great. Having a blast while at a battling of brains debate tournament are freshmen Kristen Kuehl, Sarah Keene, Andy Dupre, sophomores Johanna Johnson, Jake Schwartz, and seniors Dan Brown, Ari Dickinson, and Kirsten Mix. The foolish king of kings takes a drink from the secret fool potion. Always making people laugh while having a laugh himself is senior Abel Piercy. Rule numero siete: Make everything and every day FUN.

Those soccer buffs sure work hard on their game, that they need to take time out to have fun: Freshmen Jay Miller, senior Jake Fama are showing the other team how it's done. Freshmen Weston Wade studies hard while he's out of town on trips. So now we get to what they really do on those soccer trips, they have fun at amusement parks. Freshmen Dana Shoup, seniors Chris Giles, and Justin Dennis, junior Mike Lyshol, senior Micah Henrick, and sophomore Jose Mateu.

Taking it to the Extreme

Kayhi's Soccer Team

When joining a team there are many expectations from both sides. The coaches expect hard working, exceptional athletes, and the players just want to have fun and win. "Things didn't work out quite as I expected."
-Micah Henrick, senior

Playing soccer gives athletes a chance to travel and meet new people. So for next year's soccer players, keep in mind that "Soccer players get all the chicks!" when scoring goal after goal after goal after goal after goal.
-Justin Dennis, senior

When traveling to foreign places the players have more fun hanging out with each other than actually playing the games! "The funnest thing was driving in cars and provoking other drivers to make obscene gestures."
-Jacob Fama, senior

"This year was a blast playing soccer for Kayhi, we all had a great time in Anchorage playing against teams we could actually beat. Remember the go-carts, guys? Oh yeah...thanks coaches!" It's all about having a good time!
-Chris Giles, senior

R. White

R. White

Showing off his hard-headedness, junior Mike Lyshol bounces the ball off of his head in an attempt to protect his goal. The other players are poised and ready to run in which ever direction the ball is going to go flying.

Taking incentive to help his teammates out, sophomore Dana Sharp kicks the ball away from the opposite player. Being able to maneuver a ball is one of the tricky parts of participating in soccer. Keep up the fancy footwork!

Sander made a funny! Seniors Elizabeth Kloxin and Kirsten Mix giggle with exchange student, Sander Michelet. Prom was a great time to laugh it up with friends (or enemies).

Licking away on her lollipop, senior Barbie Hull diligently works on putting the finishing touches on the stairway that will soon be the backdrop for many professional and informal prom pictures.

It takes a lot of concentration to blow up this many balloons, as demonstrated by sophomore Claire Rowan and senior Tristan Robinson. Many students took time out of their busy schedules to help set up for prom to make sure everything was perfect and unforgettable.

This year's senior prom was very beautiful. The courtyard setting was incredibly nice and it created an elegant atmosphere. All the different styles of tuxedos and dresses were original. Josh Wilson, Eric Brooks, Matt Kloxin, Sara Weston, Sean Conley, Alexis Pahang, Kirsten Mix, Julie Painter, Chris Williams, Amy Lervick, Kristie Williams, Mike Rauwolf, prom queen Katie Poet, and prom king Abel Piercy all enjoyed the prom very much.

Senior Prom 1999

Even though everyone had a blast at prom, not all memories are happy ones. Some will become nostalgic sentimentalities. "I was sad because it was probably the last time I'll ever see most of the people I grew up with..."

--Senior Jennifer Gorder

"I had a great time at prom! I was even nominated for prom king. Mr. Pennington told me I'd won for prom king, but because Abel had been having such a hard time, I felt bad and wanted to be nice, so I told Mr. P. to let Abel win."

--Senior Michael Long

"Prom ROCKED! Everyone looked fab and my date was a perfect gentleman. The crew and I chilled with the CrunchyPunch and stayed out dancing and partying at the bowling alley 'til sunrise. Prom was unforgettable!"

--Senior Amy McDermott

"I went all-out for my date at prom, and treated her like a princess. We went to an expensive restaurant, courtesy of the chauffeur. We danced all night at prom, and partied 'til dawn at the bowling alley (The Pepsi kept the party alive)."

-- Senior Josh Wilson

The Final Conclusion

Congratulations to the class of 1999

Todd MacManus has his future mapped out. As a graduating senior, he plans to attend Gonzaga University next year, and study chemistry, or possibly even farming. With these majors in mind, Todd will no doubt be a pre-psyche student's dream come true...

With the end of high school life comes the need to plan for the future. For many seniors, this means trying to decide what college they will attend. Although it's not an easy choice, Kristie was able to make up her mind. "I'm going to Eastern Washington University."

-Kristie Williams, senior

Some people don't realize that their high school years are finally over. Now they are ready to move on and go out on their own, which is a big step. They won't realize it until they are actually out there. "It was like a dream and then I woke up."

The class of 1999 has tons of variety and a lot of original people in it. Senior Abel Peirce shows the audience how daring he really is and shaves his head in front of everyone. The ushers of the graduation were Donnie Soderstrom, Lindsay Hofstedt, Angela Pfeifer, Alice cook, and Tracy Day. Sam Willet sits at the attendance office waiting for some friends and also Matt Wolf gives a terrific speak. Way to go class of 1999!! :o)

Singing can cure the blues. Seniors Katie Poet, Hyrum Neilson, Destiny Dawson, Jennifer Gilson, Leili Plasencia, and Jeff Nuttalsing "Farewell my love," in the hopes of making a lasting impression on their fellow graduates and the members of the audience. Graduation is a time of joy, as well as sadness.

Where did Mr. King go??!! We all miss Mr. King and were very happy to see him at graduation. He proudly gives an inspirational speech to the graduating seniors.

Senior Jossy Leonora thinks back on all of her past years in Kayhi. She thinks of the good times and bad times. She helps her friend, senior Gladys Josol to put her cap on.

Oh, how sweet! Giving each other a joyful hug are senior Matt Wolf and Mrs. Bloom. This years graduation was a real tear-jerker but everyone got through it okay.

Giving a cheerful smile will brighten anyones day. Seniors Charisa Nicholas, Tim Curral, Barbara Hull, and Troy Narvez show their pearly whites to the viewers watching them graduate.
